It is estimated that the visitors will spend more than $500 in Rochester for hotel rooms, meals and automobile upkeep.

The merchants of the city are being solicited this week to help meet the expenses of the tourney which will total around $100. This includes paying the prize money offered and miscellaneous expenses.

DEBATES
High School - Rochester Versus Peru
The News-Sentinel, Jan. 28, 1931

Arrangements were completed yesterday between the local high school and the coach of the Peru debating team, Victor F. Dawald, to the effect that a dual meet has been scheduled between the two schools. The first debate will be held next Tuesday evening, February 3, at seven thirty o'clock, in the local high school assembly.

The question for discussion is the one adopted this year by the Indiana State Debating League - Resolved: That the Present System of Installment Buying of Consumptive Goods Should Be Condemned.

The negative team, from Peru, will argue for the retention of the system, and the affirmative speakers - LeRoy Frobish, Wendell Tombaugh and Mary Alice Shonk - will advance arguments to show that it is undesirable and should therefore be condemned.

Inter-school debating is a new project in Rochester High. For the past several weeks installment buying has been studied as a part of the work in the public speaking class, the members of which have now completed briefs of the proposition and drafted constructive speeches.

LeRoy Frobish, '31, Captain of the affirmative team, has had roles in two class plays and is high school yell leader, senior editor of Station R.H.S. and a member of Hi-Y. Mary Alice Shonk, '31, has also had experience in dramatics. Wendell Tombaugh, '32, is one of the news editors of the high school paper.

On Tuesday, February 10th, our negative speakers Edna Nichols (31), George Dague (31) and John Shipley (31) - will clash with the Peruvian affirmative, there.

Yesterday my dad came home
And with him he did bring
A great big box of pasteboard
Tied up with colored string

I hurriedly unwrapped it;
And what do you think I saw--
A tiny little kitten
And he gave a loud, ‘meow.’

I cherish that gray kitten
More than anything of mine,
I love him so because he is
My Dad’s valentine.

LINDSEY, ELIZABETH
Plan To Exhume Body Of Fulton County Pioneer
The News-Sentinel, Feb. 16, 1931

Val Zimmerman to move body of first white woman to die in Fulton County.

Val Zimmerman, local undertaker today made application to the State Board of Health at Indianapolis for permission to move the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsey from a burial place on East Race Street on ground now owned by Ed Kime to the Odd Fellows cemetery. It is necessary to obtain the state permit to move the body.

Mrs. Lindsey, who died here in the spring of 1831 from a fever was the first white woman to die in Fulton county. Her husband had been sent to this county from New York State by the government to establish a grist mill at the outlet of Lake Manitou to grind grain for the Indians.

Mrs. Lindsey had lived in this county only a short time before she became ill and died. Following the custom of the early day the body was buried on a high spot of ground. According to Mr. Zimmerman the state of preservation of the body will depend entirely on the consistency of the soil in which it was buried.

It is planned later to mark the grave of Mrs. Lindsey with a bronze tablet. A small monument less that two feet tall which marked the grave of Mrs. Lindsey will be reset over her new resting place in the Odd Fellows cemetery.

They began the loading of the machinery onto freight cars and stated that within two weeks the plant would have its doors locked for good. All of the machinery, stock and equipment will be moved into Chicago and made a part of the plant there.

August Griebe, who has been manager of the company since the Nipple Company came here, will return to Chicago with the organization and will move his family there in a couple of weeks. Jack Stafford, auditor of the plant here, will take employment elsewhere, he announced, although he was given an opportunity to go with the company to Chicago. - - - - in size by the company and the pay roll obligation required by contract was met two years back.

DUEY, PHIL
Millark Boy Broadcasts Over New York N.B.C. Station
The News-Sentinel, Mar. 21, 1931
Phil Duey, nationally known radio star who was born and reared on a farm in the Millark neighborhood, 5 mils southeast of this city, gave the following interesting story of his rise to fame in a recent interview with an Indianapolis Star reporter. The story which appeared in the Star follows:

(By Jean Davis Woodward)
(For Indianapolis Star)
Indiana is well known as a contributor of top notchers in many professions and a Macy (Ind.) farm boy is one of the latest Hoosiers to reach fame. Phil Duey, who four and a half years ago finished working his way through Indiana university, has become one of the foremost radio artists. At 29 his splendid barytone voice already is known to practically all the big commercially sponsored radio hours.

Mr. Duey’s salary as an artist for the National Broadcasting Company, is said to excel that of any barytone in the country with the exception, only, of Lawrence Tibbett. Duey, the only Indiana radio artist with N.B.C. has sung over more sponsored programs than any barytone in the profession.

Man About Town
Phil is one of a trio officially known on the inside as the Man About Town. Its other members are Jack Parker and Frank Luther, who also does many of the Hilly-Billy songs. Will Donaldson is the arranger and accompaniest. The trio formerly spent much time on vocal records for all the leading talking mahine companies. At present they are at work as a trio, recording complete programs for the use of the small radio stations which are not on the big hookups. This, incidentally, is a new development in radio.

The radio singer, even the artist, has little to say about his programs. Most of the big accounts have radio departments which arrange and supervise the programs.

The opinions, as well as the voice, of this good looking, unassuming young man are worth hearing.

Sees Radio Biggest Thing

I can’t see anything any bigger than radio in the future, he said in an interview, and if one considers television as part of it the future possibilities of radio are limitless. At present, there are from fifteen to twenty stations over the country broadcasting television programs every day. Of course the complete effect of a perfected television is rather remote. I do think that in the future, the program will change, because of television, to presentations on the order of musical comedies.

Radio is becoming the logical goal for beginning musicians because opportunities in other fields are disappearing before the onslaught of ‘canned’ music, Mr. Duey said. Along with other radio artists he is besieged with letters asking for advice on ‘breaking into’ the profession, but a few being from aspirants in his home state. Because of the many necessary qualifications for a successful radio artist, the advice given is similar to that given hopefuls for the movies or the stage: Be prepared or stay out.

I hate to give advice, said Mr. Duey, because individual circumstances and ability make the differential. The profession is crowded and competition is keen. But there is always room at the top for people with ability, a strong constitution and the will to work. Talent and work will carry you a long way, but a good deal depends on the ‘breaks.’ The advantage of a pleasing personality can not be minimized. If television gains the place I think it will, personality will be an increasingly important factor. Al Jolson and Chevalier, who violate all established rules of singing, are the outstanding examples of the power of personality in singing.

Radio unlike other professions, depends on versatility, not specialization.

Radio, went on Mr Duey, like the fabled man and boy with the donkey, is trying to please everyone. The successful radio artist is he who can satisfy all types. If you're going to keep your job you must develop different styles of music. On the same series of programs have had to run the whole gamut of singing, from operatic arias all the way to the hottest, dow-down-stuff.

How to Break In

If you can combine yourself in an ensemble whose members work you have a big advantage. Radio officials, like everybody else, want to keep down costs and they will look more favorably on you if you can do both ensemble and solo work.

I can say only that if you want to get into radio work, take all the musical training you can, develop good health, hope that you have a pleasing personality, and then either make your own luck or wait for the breaks. New York, like the movie studios, is full of unsuccessful hangers-on; yet the radio studios are constantly seeking good material.

Phil Duey's life history so completely follows the plan of the hard working farm boy who made good in the big city, that it is hard to avoid this stereotyped formula in writing about him. He and the other ten children of Alfred and Mary Duey spent their childhood on a farm near Macy. His father was a farmer by vocation and a musician by avocation. Phil's earliest memories are of being lifted up to the town bandstand by his sister when he was 4 years old to sing a little ditty on the program, directed by his father. Mr. Duey, senior, played almost every instrument and used to go to neighborhood towns to teach the rudiments of music. He also gave his now famous son his first musical instruction. Phil also had a couple of years of piano lessons from a Macy teacher.

Earned His Way Through College

Since he was the youngest of the eleven children there wasn't much money left for education by the time Phil was growing up. Indeed he has had to earn every penny of his way. One summer he took a short course at Manchester College which permitted him to teach the seven grades in a little red schoolhouse similar to the one he, himself, had attended. He walked eleven miles a day for this work through all kinds of regular Indiana weather. Three years of this work made him financially able to enter Indiana University.

His career there was noteworthy. It wasn't any easier to work one's way through college ten years ago than it is now.

It was a tough job I assigned myself, Duey remarked. I had to budget my time so strictly that I could tell months in advance exactly what I should be doing at any given moment of the day or night.

Sang at Methodist Church

He worked in the university library forty-three hours a week, and on Sundays sang for the two services at the First Methodist Church at Bloomington.

"I didn't have as much time as I should have liked for outside activities," reminisced Duey. "The year I toured as soloist with the Indiana University Glee Club I had to drop a course, but I felt that the experience of appearing before audiences would make the sacrifice worthwhile."

Despite the many demands on his time, Duey was an outstanding man on the campus. In his last year Mr. Duey was the only senior in the class to make both Phi Beta Kappa and the Acons. Phi Beta Kappa is the highest undergraduate scholastic honor and the Acons is an honorary organization whose members are chosen by Dr. William Lowe Bryan, president. Duey sang at convocations, was a member of the Jordan River revue, the glee club, was president of the Association of Unorganized and vice president of both the Booster Club and the Indiana Union.

Opportunity Comes

Duey was awarded his bachelor of arts degree in 1924 and then worked two more years on his music degree. He would have received this degree if he had not dropped a required course the year he toured with the glee club.

Mr. Duey's real opportunity came when he won the Juillard scholarship, premier fellowship in music for which all students hope, about 40 of which are awarded singers in a year. He immediately came to New York to study in the Juillard school and just as quickly married his childhood neighbor, Catherine Srouf, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Scott Sroufe. Mrs. Duey attended Indiana university for two years.

In New York Duey was still having to earn his way for the scholarship, which provided no living expenses. Instruction in one instrument, in theory, in languages and in voice was given him.

Soon after his arrival in New York Duey obtained parts in Broadway musical shows. He was in the cast of "Lady Do," and when it closed he worked for a few months in the cast of "Good News."
As Mr. Duey says: "Musical comedy is a good stepping stone to radio but in itself is precarious work. You never know whether the show will flop or be a success and just as likely as not you may find yourself without a job after weeks of rehearsal."

His first radio "break" came while he was in "Good News." A barytone singing in a broadcasting quartet was suddenly stricken ill. On the recommendation of a friend, Phil was given his place. A prompt offer of permanent employment with the radio came along and Phil started on the work he had been doing since. It has take just three years for his skyrocket rise to put him at the top after this chance beginning.

Likes Golf and Swimming

The Dueys now live in an English cottage at Bronxville, a suburb of New York. Their boy Jimmy is two and one-half years old. They have a baby daughter, Barbara Nell.

Radio artists often have "night owl" hours by necessity of their occupations, so their hobbies are chosen accordingly. Phil likes golf and swimming and with the coming of spring has planned to putter around in the garden of his new home. He is gaining a reputation as a bibliophile and his collection of books is indeed interesting.

Duey's other brothers and sisters still live in Indiana with the exception of a married sister in Chicago. Another sister, Mrs. E.E. Smith, 2740 Bellefontaine street, recently moved to Indianapolis from Cleveland. The others still live on farms near Macy. Several of the family sing or play musical instruments but Phil is the only one who has made music his profession.

LEITERS FORD POEM
By E.A. Richardson of Evansville, Indiana Poet Laureate
The News-Sentinel, Apr. 21, 1931

ñOLÔLEITERS FORD,ô

Iâ€™d like to loaf anâ€œloiter
Aroundâ€œLeiters Ford,
Anâ€œfish anâ€œhunt anâ€œtinker
Enough to pay my board.
Iâ€™d not want any bossinô
To agervate my mind,
Nor no one â€œround a yellinô
ñYouâ€™e lagginôback behind.ô

(18)
I'd like to take things easy
   An'n't get fussed or riled,
   An'ease along unruffled,
   Be calm an'reconiled.
No starchy, stylish clothin'
   To agitate or tire,
No manners except some horse sense
   To suit my own desire.

Now when it comes to ruthers,
   The first thing I would do
Each spring, the banks I'd thaw out
   Along the Tippecanoe.
That early fishin'fever
   Would be the first to soothe.
I'd tromp the banks so often
   I'd keep 'em slick an'smooth.

I'd roam the hills an'hollers,
   Or pile up in the shade,
Or sashay through the kitchen
   An'make a hungry raid.
I'd get to bed as early
   As the chiclens allus do.
Pervidin'I was ready
   An'tuk a notion to.

On Sunday go to meetin'
   In case o'dfeelin'well,
Or felt het up to venture
   An'hear the preacher tell
The good old bible story
   O'that great miracle
Where some one floats an'fishes,ó An'rests himself a spell.

I'd live a life of leisure
   In an'fashioned way,
An'muse mysel' by readin'
   An'writin'poetry.

There be no room for scandal,
No worldly goods to board-
That's why I like to loiter
Around Leiters Ford.

Thomas W. Chamberlain, well-known in Rochester where he had many relatives and friends recently ended 50 years service on the Chicago Tribune and the house organ "The Trib" published by that newspaper carried his picture on the cover page in a recent issue. Another picture inside showed his son, Irving and his grandson Thomas. In an article about Mr. Chamberlain the magazine had the following to say:

"We set the American revised edition of the New Testament by hand. Not a chapter or a verse was omitted - and this was in addition to the regular edition. That was one big night!"

"Thomas W. Chamberlain, veteran Tribune compositor, recalls with relish this great Tribune scoop on May 21, 1881, six weeks after he had joined the Tribune composing room staff. Throughout the 50 years he has spent in the composing room, this particular accomplishment stands out as a memorable event in his Tribune career. Even the memory of the night President Garfield was assassinated is overshadowed by it. - - - - -

"Thomas Chamberlain is a native Hoosier. He served his apprenticeship at typesetting in Dayton, Ohio, and came to Chicago in April, 1881, when he joined the Tribune staff. Four years later he was one of the first Tribune compositors to change from the hand-set to the linotype method and was placed on one of the first 12 linotype machines installed by the Tribune. Mr. Chamberlain has worked on the night shift almost entirely during his 50 Tribune years. - - - - -"

LAKE MANITOU
Publicised by Lowell Thomas
The News-Sentinel, May 12, 1931

Lake Manitou received considerable publicity Monday night over the radio when Lowell Thomas in his Literary Digest 15 minute world news period described a fishing trip in which Clint Irvine, owner of a boat landing at the dam, played the principal role. Once each week Thomas described a fishing experience and out of many which had been sent to him the past week selected the one about Clint Irvine. The story was to the effect that while casting for bass at Lake Manitou at night Irvine’s hook, which was baited with a frog, landed on top of a large lily pad near Coney Island. Irvine was surprised when instead of the line being pulled it rose into the air and curled several times around his head and when he finally was able to reel it into the boat he found that a large hoot owl had grabbed the bait instead of a bass. The story was sent to Thomas by William Wade, of Indianapolis, who is a friend of Mr. Irvine.

Another reason assigned for the removal was the refusal of the Kewanna citizens to donate Simons $500 a year for three years. At one time the apron factory gave employment to 30 women, but during the past two years has been closed a greater portion of the time so the loss of the factory will not be felt very much in Kewanna.

CHICAGO GARMENT COMPANY
Moved From Rochester
The News-Sentinel, June 2, 1931

The Chicago Garment Company which has operated a factory in the old postoffice building on Main Street for the last three years was moved from the city on Monday afternoon. It is understood that most of the machinery, consisting mainly of 20 power sewing machines, was loaded on trucks and taken to LaPorte where the factory will now be located.

Isadore Neiman, of Chicago, owner of the plant, could not be located today and no reason is known here for the sudden move. Mrs. Ed Mohler, forelady, stated that beyond rumors of the moving no definite word had been given here by the management until the plnt was closed. About 20 girls were employed in the factory and they were all relieved from further duty.

Neiman owned plants at Argos, Milford, and Hartford City, and it is understood that he is moving them all and consolidating them in LaPorte.

The Chicago Garment Company was guaranteed a bonus when it located here by the merchants of Rochester, the four payments being made one in the spring of each year and a contract signed at the time of the agreement called for the factory to remain in operation in the city four years. The four year period will not expire until February, 1931. The contract which was signed originally with the old Chamber of Commerce is now held by the Rochester Kiwanis Club.

The News-Sentinel, June 4, 1931

Another landmark of Rochester passed on its way today when old Advent Church, located at the corner of Sixth and Fulton was moved away and the lot left vacant. For the last few years the building has been the property of Oren Hendrickson and recently he sold it to Arthur Freese. The latter is moving it to his lot on State Road 14 west of Rochester and will remodel it into a home it is understood. The building was being moved by Frank Shafer of Argos on Thursday.

The Advent church at one time had a good size congregation here with their regular pastor but as time passed the membership dwindled and finally passed out altogether. Later the church was rented to other denominations for services but in the last two years it has been closed and was sold to Mr. Hendrickson. The adventists always held church services on Saturday which they observed as their Sabbath.

The frame building was one of the early structures built in Rochester but it could not be learned today just when it was erected.

BROWN, Col. Isaac Washington
Memorial Planned
The News-Sentinel, June 17, 1931

All plans have now been completed for the dedication and unveiling of a memorial tablet honoring Isaac Washington Brown, known the country over as "The Bird & Bee Man." The ceremony will take place next Sunday afternoon, June 21st at two o'clock central standard time, at the graveside in the I.O.O.F. Cemetery here at Rochester.

The honor is being paid to a noted public benefactor seventeen years after he died, as he passed away on August 24, 1914 at his home on West Tenth Street. The idea of a fitting monument to be placed over the heretofore unmarked grave originated in the mind of Henry (30)
Pershing of South Bend, an old friend of the Colonel’s. The Indiana Audubon Society was interested in the idea and that worthy organization began a movement under the leadership of Dr. Earl Brook, its president, that resulted in sufficient money being raised to purchase a beautiful bronze plaque which is pictured herewith.

Rochester citizenship however, early expressed a desire to do its part and the Rochester Kiwanis Club agreed to secure and place a large natural Indiana boulder on which the plaque could be placed. This monument is to adorn the grave of Col. Brown and will everlastingly give its message to the people that here lies the body of the man who “spread the gospel of bird protection.” The expense of securing and dressing the stone was paid for by the Colonel’s personal friend, of years, Henry A. Barnhart, while many donations were made locally to help in the work.

The dedication ceremony on Sunday will be open to the public and all lovers of the outdoors, of the birds and bees and admirers of Col. Brown are invited to be present. The Indiana Audubon Society with Dr. Earl Brooks as presiding officer will have charge of the program, while the committee in charge for the Rochester Kiwanis Club consists of Val Zimmerman, Daniel S. Perry and Robert Shafer. The tablet will be unveiled by Mrs. Isaac W. Brown, the widow, while present will be one of the sons, Ray, Mrs. Ray Brown, and three children, Mrs. Ted Brown, of Indianapolis, Billie Brown and Van Brown.

The program will be opened by music by the Leroy Shelton Post American Legion Band. Rev. T.L. Stovall, pastor of the Methodist Church will deliver a prayer and then Henry A. Pershing will present the tablet in behalf of the Audubon Society. Mrs. Brown will then unveil the tablet. Henry A. Barnhart will deliver an address on the life and deeds of the late benefactor. Music will follow and the program will close with the benediction by Rev. J.B. Gleason.

WHITE CITY
Cot Night at Marathon Wednesday, July 8th
The News-Sentinel, July 7, 1931

A special feature which will no doubt arouse the curiosity of the public will be staged Wednesday night at the marathon dance which is now being held in the pavilion at the White City Amusement Part. The feature is known as cot night. The beds of the remaining marathon (32) contestants will be moved to the dance floor where spectators will be given an opportunity to watch the dancers during their rest periods.

Both female and male trainers will show what attention is given to the dancers during the rest periods. This attention includes medical examination and the care which is given to the marathoners’ feet. The sleeping of the dancers is often interesting as some become “squirrely” and have to be aroused from their slumbers. The awakening of a sleeping marathoner is often a hard and perilous undertaking for a trainer.

Six couples remain in the marathon, three of the dancers, Fred Smith, Indianapolis, Miss Florence Ollis, Benton Harbor, Mich., and Miss Betty Malcomb, of Kokomo, withdrawing because the pace of the dance became too gruelling for them. Miss Malomb was a solo dancer and remained in the contest for 300 hours after her partner withdrew.

The marathon started at 10 p.m. on Memorial Day. At 10 p.m., Tuesday the marathons will have danced six weeks and two days.

a famous company. The man is H.B. Gentry, animal trainer and owner of the Gentry Brothers dog & pony show while the pony is one of those he has trained himself and which takes a leading part in his shows. All of which leads up to the fact that this pioneer trained animal act founded by H.B. Gentry in 1888 is coming back to Rochester next Sunday, July 12th, under the auspices of The American Legion. Mr.
Gentry has returned with his famous show after 15 years of being absent. The circus will be shown at the Baker Airport-field on East Ninth street where a performance will be given at two o’clock and another at eight.

The younger parents of today will remember the Gentry Brothers dog & pony shows. Fifteen years ago their founder retired to regain health. For that reason the children of today have heard of his shows only as bedtime stories. - - - - In keeping with conditions the shows return at pre-war time prices, children 25 cents and adults 35 cents.
This year the shows give no parade. Traffic conditions led to this. - - - -

The News-Sentinel, July 11, 1931

Mr. & Mrs. Brickle and son Harry, who assists his father in the management of the races and publicity work, are taking up their permanent residence in this city in order to supervise the continuous improvement work which is being made at the Manitou speedway.

To numerous local business men Mr. Bricker has been well and favorably known for the past five years, he having had supervision of racing events at the local speedway for that period of time with the exception of two years when his services were centered almost exclusively in the management of races at Ft. Wayne through his long years of co-operating with the leading dirt track auto racers in the Mid-West states he has made a host of friends through his "square dealing" and as a result these star performers of the "roaring" track are always ready to turn out and give their best for Promoter Bricker.

On next Sunday, July 19th, one of the largest field of auto racers ever to assemble on an Indiana track will be at the local speedway to risk life and limb in furnishing a realistic background for Bricker’s slogan of "speed, thrills and spills." A list of these drivers will appear in an early issue of this newspaper.

A story taken from the Cleveland Plain Dealer and sent in by Raymond D. Gohn, of Cleveland, gives the information that the trombone quartet used by the King's Jesters over the radio produced by the vocal cords alone. The Jesters with three Rochester boys have made quite a reputation for the musical imitations. Francis Bastow, John Ravencroft and George Howard, of Rochester, and Ray McDermott compose the quartet. The story said this information was given to settle all arguments about the trombone numbers the boys give quite often.

Forty-five friends of Mr. & Mrs. Bert Busenburg gathered at their home in Newcastle Township Wednesday and cut between 40 and 50 cords of wood. The wives of the wood cutters served a community dinner at the noon hour. Mr. Busenburg is blind and Mrs. Busenburg has been an invalid since last summer.

In 1891 a Mr. Mitchel from Texas came to Rochester and interested two Rochester citizens, Mr. Phillips and Mr. Grove, in under-truss cable bridges. It was finally decided that a company headed by these three men should be organized. From this start grew The Rochester Bridge Company, which has been Rochester's leading institution for practically forty years.

At first there was no factory building erected especially or used exclusively for the newly organized company. However, the Ross Foundry and Machine Company which is still in existence, fabricated the various parts of iron bridges for it for approximately two years.

Mr. Mitchell, the organizer of the company, disappeared in 1893, and Mr. Frank Hoffman of this city took his place. In 1895 Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Robert Wallace purchased the interest of Mr. Phillips and Mr. Grove, and with a new man by the name of L.C. Curtis formed a corporation of the company, which had been a partnership.
up to this time. Robert Wallace was the president; Frank Huffman, the vice-president; and L.C. Curtis, the secretary-treasurer. This corporation erected a new frame factory building just north of the present site of the Chicago Nipple Company factory. This building was used by the Rochester Bridge Company until 1900. During the occupancy of this building the business of the corporation was entirely the fabrication and erection of steel highway bridges. Most of the bridges were erected in Kosciusko, Miami, Adams, Whitley, Starke, Marshall, Cass and Fulton counties. The factory, which at that time employed about fifteen men, operated only during the summer months, because it was believed that bridge construction could not be carried on during the stormy weather of winter months.

In 1897 L.C. Curtis severed his connections with the corporation, and two years later most of the stock of the above corporation was sold to five prominent Rochester business men: W.H. Deniston, Christopher Hoover, W.H. Bassett, Omar B. Smith, and Jerry Drudge. It is understood, however, that Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Wallace retained their stock for a short time. Under this new management, which was organized with W.H. Deniston as president, W.B. Bassett as vice-president, and Omar B. Smith as secretary-treasurer, the business of fabricating and erecting highway bridges was carried on quite successfully, and an enviable record was made in regard to paying dividends. The company was so prosperous that at one time the Wabash Bridge Company of Wabash, Indiana, made Mr. Deniston an attractive offer of consolidation, but because of a desire to see a successful industry in his home town, Rochester, he refused.

In the year 1902 A.L. Deniston, son of W.H. Deniston, became a stockholder and an active assistant to his father in the business. Soon after the entrance of his son into the affairs of the corporation W.H. Deniston retired from active work there, although he retained his stockholdings. Mr. A.L. Deniston was secretary, general manager, and later president until the year 1923, when he too retired from an active part in the affairs of the corporation. During the period from 1902 until 1923 A.L. Deniston built up the industry with excellent success. Bridges were fabricated and sent to every state in the United States with the exception of the New England States and a few states along the Atlantic coast.

During this period, selling agencies were established in Dallas, Texas, with M.S. Hane, Jr., as the head; in Bartlesville, Oklahoma, with Fred Brewer as the local representative; and in Cincinnati, Ohio in 1912, with T. Lyon as the representative. Besides selling bridges through the above mentioned agents and directly to counties in the various states, The Rochester Bridge Company fabricated bridges for the Hennipin Bridge Company of Minneapolis, Minnesota, and the Austin Brothers Bridge Company of Atlanta, Georgia. This company erected the Broadway bridge over the Wabash River in Peru, Indiana, and thus replaced the old bridge which had been washed out by the 1913 flood. The present structure over the Tippecanoe River just north of town on State Road 31 was another Rochester contract.

By 1909 the officers of the corporation decided that the business had grown to such proportions that a new plant would have to be constructed. So A.L. Deniston with the aid of his father, W.H. Deniston, selected the site of the present company immediately northwest of the intersection of the L.E. & W. and the Erie Railroads.

From 1909 to 1915 the company entered a new field of operation, the fabrication and erection of structural steel for buildings. At first the percentage of structural tonnage turned out was very small, but this percentage gradually grew until by 1915 and 1916 the percentages of the two products had nearly reversed; the structural tonnage amounted to about eighty-five percent of the entire output. Some of the structures erected by this company were: three large school buildings for the Board of Education in Chicago, many factory buildings in the Chicago district, including the entire plant of the General American Tank Car Corporation, and buildings in almost every city in the Central States. However the territory covered by the structural steel sales organization was not nearly so extensive as that covered by the bridge sales organization.

By 1915 and 1916 such large orders for steel materials were coming into the United States from the European countries engaged in the World War that every steel fabrication shop east of the Mississippi River had all the business it could possibly handle. This was brought about by the Eastern munition factories and ship-building companies, as well as allied industries, increasing their plant capacities. At this time, or a little earlier, Mr. E.F. Hunter of Chicago became vice-president of the company, H.G. Miller of Rochester became treasurer, and Guy R. Barr became secretary.

When the U.S. entered the World War in 1917, almost every factory manufacturing any products requiring metal was placed in a restricted class, and those factories turning out materials for the United States Government were placed on priority lists and given priority numbers. Because of this local and domestic business ceased almost entirely, so the officers of the company decided that if they intended to continue their business, they would have to produce materials for the United States Government. Through the efforts of Mr. Deniston and Mr. Hunter the Rochester Bridge Company was awarded the contract for fabricating certain parts of all ships built by the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation in Philadelphia in the Hag Island shipping yards. Because of the large contract the original shop building was extended on the north and east sides. During the period between 1917 and the close of the War the local corporation employed as many as two hundred men, all of whom were exempt from military service because they were working on government orders.

At the close of the war business returned to its normal state and the products furnished were the same as before the war with an occasional diversified order, such as the exportation of some logging equipment to the island of Java.

The company continued under the same management until 1923, at which time Mr. Deniston and Mr. Barr sold their interests in the company to Mr. Frank Bryant and Mr. H.G. Miller, who form part of the present management, which consists of Mr. Frank Bryant, president, H.G. Miller, treasurer, and Murray McCarty, secretary and general manager.

The Rochester Bridge Company has no longer retained its outside selling agencies; some of them were discontinued even before the war. The company has operated more or less successfully up to the present time, although just now because of the depression the number of employees has shrunk to fifteen or twenty.

WOLF KILLED ON PYLE FARM
By Jeff Gaumer
The News-Sentinel, Feb., 19, 1932

Jeff Gaumer, who resides on a farm two miles northwest of this city on the Burton road, at 9:30 o'clock this morning shot and killed a fully grown timber wolf on the Stephen Pyle farm, a short distance west of the Gaumer farm. Mr. Gaumer was one of six farmers who were hunting the wolf. The others were Mike Eash, Floyd and Leonard Gaumer, sons of Jeff Gaumer, and William Foster and son George.

The hunt was staged after Scott Savage, Miss Annabelle Viers, Miss Isabelle Rans and Miss Yetta Entsminger, teachers in the Burton school west of the city, saw the wolf this morning while on their way to the school house. The wolf at one time was in a field on the Pyle farm which is tenanted by M.E. Berkheiser.

The four teachers stopped at the Wlliam Foster farm and reported to Mr. Foster about having seen the wolf. Mr. Foster then phoned his neighbors and the six men took to the field. The farmers had about given up the chase when Mr. Gaumer happened to notice the wolf coming straight toward him from across a field.

Mr. Gaumer shot at the wolf but the animal after being hit veered and ran into a clump of woods nearby. Gaumer thought he had only injured the wolf. The six hunters went into the woods and after a 30 minute search Floyd and Leonard came upon the wolf which had crawled under some underbrush to die.

The hunters brought the wolf, which was a female and weighed 21 pounds, to this city. They displayed the wolf in several local stores and then took it to the county auditor's office where they claimed the $20 bounty which is paid for all wolves shot in Fulton county. The men voted to split the bounty money equally between them.

ROCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL
To Leave The "Big Ten"
The News-Sentinel, Mar.. 22 , 1932

It was announced here today by officials of Rochester high school that within a few days Rochester will send in its resignatio from the North Central Conference, commonly known as "The Big Ten." This announcement did not come as a surprise to the majority of basketball fans here as it was talked that such action might be taken aftr this season.

It is the plans of the school officials to schedule games for future seasons with "natural" rivals of Rochester rather than go to far istant towns and bring them here at great expense. Also since the Zebras hav not had teams in reent season of the class that they had in years gone by it is the intention of the scheduling oficials to arrange games here and abroad with teams o its own class so players will have an even chance to score victories and give the fans more closely played games. Continual overwhelming dfeas by the leading "Big Ten" teams such a Muncie, Aderso, Newcastle, Technical, Frankfort and others has not led to any "building up" process with the local squads nor has it helped the school morale. Finally bringing the far away teams has resulted in the smallest attendance on record during the past season and the cost has been more than the athletic treasury can stand. - - - - -

It is planned that beginning with the next season games will be scheduled with Plymouth, Peru, Warsaw, North Manchester, Logansport, Winamac, Culver and other neighboring schools. - - - -

BOY SCOUT CAMP SITE
East Chicago Scouts Buy Gilchrist Farm
The News-Sentinel, June 13, 1932

A deal was completed late Saturday whereby the Boy Scout councils of East Chicago became the owners of the Thomas Gilchrist farm located seven miles northwest of this city along the Tippecanoe River. The farm will be used as a permanent camp site by the East Chicago boy scouts. A number of the scouts are already at the farm.

The farm was sold by the heirs of Thomas Gilchrist through William Gilchrist, a son who is the administrator of his father’s estate, for $3,000. The transaction was approved by Judge Robert Miller in the Fulton circuit court.

The Gilchrist farm will make an admirable camp site. It is one of the beauty spots along the river. It has a high bank at this point which will make it an ideal spot for the building of a camp. Cool springs furnish an adequate water supply. The woods, all of which is virgin timber, can be used for scouting activities.

At the present time there are 75 Boy Scouts in camp at the Gilchrist farm. It is planned to have as high as 300 scouts at a time at the camp during the summer months. Cabins will be built as well as a number of permanent buildings.

The Boy Scout councils of East Chicago were able to purchase the Gilchrist farm through money which was left to the Boy Scouts by the late William Wright, a resident of East Chicago, who was interested in Boy Scout activities.

Mr. Wright died last winter and when his will was opened it was found that he had left a large sum of money to be used for Boy Scout work. The trustees of the fund, William Murray, Dickey L. Mitchell and Mrs. Fortunetta Lees and residents of East Chicago arranged for the purchase of the Gilchrist farm and delivered the check for the same to the Gilchrist heirs.

WINONA RAILROAD CO.
Thrown Into Receivership
The News-Sentinel, June 29, 1932

The Winona Railroad company, operating a passenger and freight line between Goshen and Peru, through the eastern part of Fulton County, and with general headquarters in Warsaw, was today thrown into a receivership on petition of the Warsaw Investment company.

Theodore C. Frazer, Warsaw, was appointed receiver and furnished a bond in the sum of $10,000.

In its petition the investment company alleges that the railroad company is indebted to it in the sum of $695.75 for premiums on insurance.

A statement relative to the receivership was issued from the general office of the company as follows:

There will be no change whatsoever in the operation of the property as it is known at this time. It will be operated by Theodore C Frazer as receiver with the present personnel in charge. However, later it may be necessary to make some changes which might affect the present employees.

There will be no change as far as shipping facilities are concerned, and no change in passenger service is contemplated at this time. This is a friendly receivership brought by the Warsaw Investment company and the accounts of the Winona Railroad company are in good shape.

There are no bonds in the hands of the public, as all are in the hands of the officials of the company. We have no bank loans against the company, and there are very few creditors and accounts outstanding.

Within the last six years the Winona Railroad company has shown a gain of 50 per cent in earnings in connection with the steam line railroads, but in the same period it has shown a loss in revenue of 80 90 per cent in connection with other electric railroads due to truck competition.

Tonnage handled in connection with electric railroads moves within a radius of 150 miles or within the territory governed by local truck operations, thus accounting for the loss in connection with other electric railways.

The cost of the Winona railroad when constructed was $300,000.000. The end from Warsaw north was built in 1904 and the line south of Warsaw was constructed in 1906.

REYNOLDS, LIBBY HOLMAN
Was Niece of George & Enerstine Holzman
The News-Sentinel, July 16, 1932

Libby Holman Reynolds, central figure in the famous suicide case now in newspaper headlines, is closely related to former Rochester persons it developed here today. It was learned recently that her parents real name was Holzman and that they dropped the ÒZÓ during the World War and stories in todayÔs metropolitan newspapers confirmed the fact that Mrs. Reynolds was a relative of the Holzmans now deceased, who lived for many years in Rochester.

George and Enerstine Holzman lived in their home just north of the Babcock Meat Market on Main Street. They had several children all born here one of whom was Bess Holzman. She was married to Ross Holzman of Cincinnati. Although their names were the same they were only distantly related. Ross was the twin brother of Alfred Holzman who is the father of Libby Holman Reynolds.

Husband Disappears

After the wedding the Ross Holzmans lived in Cincinnati where the two brothers conducted a prosperous beverage firm. This firm failed in 1905 with losses reported to be at $250,000. This created a big sensation in that city but on June 26th of the same year another bigger one followed when Ross disappeared. He had gone to Sidney, O., in search of funds to save the company but never returned. Although 27 years have passed he has not been heard of since. Mrs. Bess Holzman returned to Rochester to live with her parents afterwards and was besieged here by reporters from Cincinnati newspapers who interviewed her in hopes of getting some trace of her husband. Feature writers made much of "the little gray cottage" on Main street and for days the newspapers printed considerable about her, her husband and the firm. Several years later Mrs. Holzman secured a divorce from her missing husband and later married Arthur Lewis of New York. She now resides in the East.

Now In Rochester

Libby Holman, the niece of Mr. & Mrs. Ross Holzman, was here in 1904, attended the University of Cincinnati and always with a flare for theatricals went to New York and soon became famous as a "torch singer." At the height of her fame she met Smith Reynolds, heir to the tobacco millions, married him secretly in Monroe, Michigan, following his divorce, and went with him to the Reynolds estate at Winston-Salem, N.C. There, following a gay party Reynolds shot himself with a pistol and died four hours later. Mrs. Reynolds was released after being held several days to testify and is now in seclusion with relatives in Cincinnati.

McELROY, CLARENCE
Tells Of His Rescue
The News-Sentinel, July 16, 1932

Mexico City, July 16 - Clarence McElroy, Medaryville airplane pilot, who was found yesterday after he had wandered 17 days without food through dense tropical jungles in the state of Oaxaco where his plane crashed June 27, stated his partner in the flight, Roy Gordon, an American resident of Honduras, was killed.

Neither Gordon's body nor the wreckage of the plane was found by the rescue party. Too weak to walk and almost too weak to talk, McElroy was first seen Wednesday by an Indian woodsman five miles west of San Garonimo.

The woodsman went back for help and at noon yesterday a searching party found the airman. He was slightly injured in the crash but was declared in messages received here to be in fair condition despite his adventure.

McElroy said the plane crash was caused by a severe tropical storm in the middle of which his motor failed.

Last night the rescued airman slept in the home of the mayor of the little town near which he was found.

When the Indian discovered him he was sprawled out in a heavy growth of ferns in the jungle. He knew no Spanish but by signs he conveyed the information that his plane and his companion were somewhere in the deep jungle from which he had come.

The area where the plane crashed is one of the least known spots in Mexico. McElroy, employed by the Waco corporation of Troy, Ohio, was delivering the plane to Honduras when the crash occurred.

McELROY RELATES DETAILS
Of Crash In Mexico Jungle
The News-Sentinel, July 25, 1932

Mexico City, July 25. - The Medaryville, Ind., flyer, Clarence L. McElroy, who was desperately injured in a plane crash in the jungles of Oaxaca state on June 27, today told for the first time the story of his 18 days of terror before he was rescued.

Semi-paralyzed from a blow on the head, covered with insect bites and still very weak, McElroy was brought here aboard the Pan-American International plane from San Geronimo.

The flyer was met by his brother, Richard McElroy, and Joseph E. Rorden of Medaryville. He was attended by Dr. A.R. Goodman, who said his condition was satisfactory but it would be some time before he could recover the use of one leg.

The flyer said his subconscious mind forced him on toward safety in the jungle while he was semi-delirious and he finally sighted (87) four calves tethered to trees and waited for somebody to come get them.

Crashed During Storm

Here is his story:

We were flying southward enroute to Honduras when we ran into a furious tropical storm. There was no visibility and I tried to find a spot to land. Suddenly the plane crashed into a mountainside.

That was at 10 a.m. I was knocked out and recovered consciousness in a rainstorm at 3 p.m., noting that the plane was a complete washout. My leg and head pained severely and I was too weak to crawl out of the wreck.

I can't remember much of those first three days. Everything was hazy. I could see that my companion, Roy Gordon of Teguelgalpa, Honduras, was dead, but I was too weak to move.

Three days later I had recovered some strength. I tried to cover Gordon's body and then started crawling up the mountain to get my bearings.

It was almost impossible to make headway in the jungle. My pains increased. I got water from a small mountain stream and caught a few crabs and ate them raw.

3 Miles in 14 Days

At night I could see the lights of San Geronimo, but made very slow progress, probably not more than three miles from the ship in 14 days' crawling. I was very weak and somewhat delirious.

I would crawl a while, then pick bugs and insects a while and dodge many snakes. I saw no wild animals.

Nearly gave up several times but it is hard to die as long as you might have a chance. Even in my clouded mind the urge to live survived. I was desperate many times in the jungle, almost sure I would die, but I could not give up.

July 12 was my lucky day, for that evening I found a herd of cows beside a stream, but what gave me hope was the sight of four calves tied to trees. I knew somebody eventually would come to untie those calves, so stopped right there. I was too weak even to try to milk a cow.

Found By Indian Boy

The next morning an Indian boy came. He was Gerardo Enrequez and I motioned that I wanted some food. He milked a cow and gave me some milk and some cheese he had. By signs I told him of my predicament, and he understood. He built a small lean-to to protect me and left for help.
That boy did a marvelous job. He covered 20 miles to San Geronimo four times in a single day getting help and getting me out. I am going to reward him handsomely.

As soon as Dr. Goodman gives the word, McElroy intends to start for Indana.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY STUDENTS
Visit Chippewa-Nung with Prof. Lockridge
The News-Sentinel, Aug. 12, 1932

One hundred years ago on September 3, 1832 one of the grave tragedies of America was enacted along the Tippecanoe River just above the spot where the Michigan road bridge is located. Then the white man by the point of bayonets, gathered the Indians at Chippewa-Nung and pushed them on their long march westward, moving the poor redskins out as civilization moved in. Today that scene was vividly recalled by the visit of a history class to the spot to see the actual ground and to hear the story.

The class made up of 25 young women, students at Indiana University, listened attentively to Prof. Ross F. Lockridge, Indiana historian and director of the tour relate tales of the last days of the Indian in this territory. The group was augmented by a number of Rochester citizens representing the D.A.R. and other organizations.

Prof. Lockridge said that this was one of the most significant spots in Indiana and complimented the D.A.R., for erecting a marker there. He told how the Miami Indians first lived here and of the coming of the Pottowatomies and of their village built on the river bank. On Oct. 26, 1832 a treaty was made with the Indians which opened the land for settlement and it took away the territory from the Indians, all but a small plot for their village at Twin Lakes. In 1837 another treaty wiped out every remaining right the Indians had and called for his removal.

The state militia was called and surrounding the Indians while they were in church captured them. They were started on their long march to Missouri and their first night out they camped on the Tippecanoe at Chippewa-Nung. The villages were all burned so as to discourage them from wanting to return home. The procession was over three miles long and it was a march of death Prof. Lockridge said as one-fifth of all the adults died while all of the children passed away. And thus, he concluded, was the Indian was taken from his God given home and be pushed out never to return.

Prof. Lockridge explained that this was a tour to teach history right on the spot and that full credit is being given the students for their work.

These cars donated and driven by the people of Rochester and vicinity fell into line behind the band and with a big banner reading, "Welcome Erie," in front of the procession started down Main Street making a solid line of cars from the depot to the lake. At Ninth Street the band fell out and the autos hurried on to the Colonial Hotel where the guests were unloaded.

At the depot the Erie Folks were given an official welcome by Mayor Charles Jones and the Kiwanis Club committee, which was in charge of the transportation arrangements. At the Colonial Hotel the grounds and all of the facilities were turned over to the visitors for the day.

FREE POTATOES
By J.C. Beery
The News-Sentinel, Oct. 19, 1932

J.C. Beery, owner of the Dixie Melon Farm, three and half miles northwest of this city on the Burton Road today offered potatoes for charitable purposes. Mr. Beery stated that deserving persons may have the same by coming to his farm and gathering the potatoes from the field. The potatoes were dug from a 15 acre field and have been sorted. Many of the potatoes are "fifths."
Emancipator visited soldier camps to give sympathy and courage to the soldier boys. For Mr. Weirick that is a sacred memory.

"Then I know that you are one of the old 'coffee coolers' who loves Old Glory?"

"Yes, and am even now ready to die for the dear old flag - and a solemn emotion made his voice quaver and tears dimmed his eyes in tender reverence for the greatest emblem of liberty the world has ever known.

Mr. Weirick never married. He is a jolly joker, even though approaching the century mark, for he stated that he remained "an old buck," which may be adequate reason for his long term of years.

Sunday was a day set apart in honor of this veteran soldier, for a birthday celebration dinner provided by Mr. & Mrs. William Nicodemus, at which only the family were seated, but there existed a sentiment of heart affinity for the "Grand Old Man" of the household, so the occasion was one of no less happiness for the hosts than for the veteran in whose honor the event was marked.

EDITORIAL
Unpaid Service
The News-Sentinel, Dec. 1, 1932

In these times when so much is said about the cost of government, let us think for a moment of all the generous service that is given to public causes, without money compensation. More of this service could be had if necessary.

During the World War, an enormous amount of time was given by social workers and business and professional people, for the advancement of the national cause. Many commissions are now working for the state and federal governments without pay, made up of people who are glad to give their time to the betterment of humanity, and the advancement of life in their home states and the country.

Cities and towns receive an enormous amount of unpaid service, contributed freely out of public spirit. People who become discouraged because of the slow progress of good causes, should consider how many persons there are who are willing to give their time to promote measures of social welfare, education and philanthropy.

One of the most useful powers that a public official can possess, is the ability to enlist the co-operation of these public spirited folks, and persuade them to give their time and effort without money compensation to the public. Some public officials seem to have a gift for that sort of thing. They can present the needs of a state or city in such an appealing and magnetic way, that people are fired with enthusiasm, and they consent to help and they work hard in these generous efforts.

We need still more effort to enlist such willing service to accomplish the ends which our people hold in view. And those who give such service should feel that when they thus offer time to the public, they render benefits that are never forgotten, and they constitute themselves the benefactors of the community.

PALMER HOUSE AT CULVER
Now Maxinkuckee Inn
The News-Sentinel, Dec. 1, 1932

Culver, Ind., Dec. 1. - After being known as the Palmer House for 57 years, the well known hotel near the Academy is having its name changed to Maxinkuckee Inn in conformity with a change of management and policy. The change was effective today.

Miss Anne Ellsworth, who has been associated with the Tavern Shop for some time, will have personal supervision of the hotel, succeeding F.S. Murphy, who has been manager of the Palmer House for about a year.

Not only has the hotel's name and management been changed, but so have its furnishings and policy in keeping with the plan to instill the atmosphere of a hospitable old inn instead of a formal hotel.

Comfortable new furniture in maple, a fine large window overlooking the lake and a grand fire place in the lounge, a new card room, redecorating and comfortably furnishing all the rooms, equipping of several rooms with bath and the placing of other bathrooms about the building are the main changes at the inn. It is expected that new rates will be announced in the near future.

Home cooking will be featured by the kitchen under the direction of Miss Opal Barkes of Lafayette, and the home atmosphere will be carried out by women waitresses in the dining room and The Shack.

The Tavern Shop, which has been operated in conjunction with the Palmer House, will be discontinued December 31, it has been announced, and the stock of clothing and gifts is being closed out.

ROCHESTER VAUDEVILLE STAR
Tells Of Her Career
The News-Sentinel, Jan. 14, 1933
Miss Freeda Sullivan gave the following interesting account to the Station R.H.S. Staff when interviewed by a reporter
How did I happen to get into vaudeville? Well, I always think it was fate or shall I say My Lucky Day for it happened on the thirteenth. Guess maybe that’s why Friday the thirteenth holds no fears for me.

It was in 1923 when living in Tipton, I studied voice of Prof. Edward Nell, of the Metropolitan School of Music, Indianapolis.

Otis Mitchell, who had recently returned from Australia where he completed a successful engagement, needed a high soprano to complete the cast of a new act he had purchased from the producer, Ralph Dunbar of Louisville, Kentucky. Mr. Mitchell was at Indianapolis and consulted Prof. Nell at the Metropolitan and was informed that at that very time a soprano (who happened to be me) who would exactly fill the bill was taking a lesson. After Mr. Mitchell and I had been introduced, we discovered that we were both from Tipton and almost neighbors.

From that moment on I just walked on air, so excited at the thought of being given a chance to try out for vaudeville. After having filled the qualifications of Mr. Mitchell as to height, weight and personal appearance (P.A.), I went to Louisville to sing parts of the act before Ralph Dunbar, the producer. And believe you me, I breathed easier when I came out of his studio than when I walked in, as one qualification was to sing E above high C. (If you know what I mean.)

Well, one week from that day Mr. Mitchell, three other girls and I were busy rehearsing in Louisville preparing to fill a fifty-two week contract on B.F. Keith time. This engagement took us along the entire Eastern Coast with four weeks in Canada and fifteen weeks in the Southern states. Those fifteen weeks down South, there were four other acts on the bill with us; hence it was possible to enjoy and live as one large family, a rare opportunity for one of the profession to do, as it is here today and gone tomorrow when you are in vaudeville.

Homesick? Well, it all happened so sudden and every thing was so new and interesting there was little time for homesickness until we reached New York where we experienced our first open time due to a misunderstanding in the booking office of Harry Wever, New York. During one of the lonely evenings (and they can be lonely even in New York) I decided to wait till the mid-night rate and call home, for oh, I had so much to say and so many questions to ask the folks. Well, the girls came into my room to share in my thrill of talking from New York City to Rochester After getting my call through all I could say was, Hello, how are you? Good-bye. I was so choked with tears.
and a big lump in my throat. Then we four girls sure put on a crying act worthy of any Keith house.

Oh, I haven't told you a thing about our act, which was beautiful. We were billed as "The Maryland Singers," and I can proudly say we were headliners in the most of the houses we played, some of which were B.F. Keith, Portland, Me., Boston, Mass., Syracuse, N.Y., Palace, Cleveland, Ohio, and Keith on the board walk, Atlantic City. We had the opportunity of seeing the Prince of Wales who was stopping at the same hotel we were, at the Mount Royal, Montreal, Canada. It was down South, that we really enjoyed giving our act which carried the Southern atmosphere.

Picture a big shining moon shining down on a winding river, a handsome youth strumming banjo, singing in a low melodious voice, and four girls dressed in gorgeous silk hoop skirts dresses, wearing large lace-trimmed hats and harmonizing the strains of "O Suzanna," "Old Black Joe," "Swanee River," and "My Old Kentucky Home," and you have a faint picture of the act.

But it is like everything else, every rose must have its thorn and with all the beauty, work and pleasure we can truly say it is a tiresome fascination. It seems those are days gone forever as far as B.F. Keith Vaudeville is concerned.

The News-Sentinel, Feb. 1, 1933
A news item appearing in today’s Chicago Tribune, will be of interest to Fulton County friends of Miss Margaret McConnell, Kewanna girl, who has been made a most attractive offer by a movie producing company in Hollywood, the article follows:

>Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 1 - Margaret McConnell, the Chicago ‘Cigaret Advertisemt’ girl, whose smile in the ads won her an MGM contract, was so happy and excited when she arrived in Los Angeles last night that she ‘quivered like a captured rabbit,’ to use the expression of one of the studio’s committee who went to the depot to welcome her.

Miss McConnell, who hails originally from Kewanna, Ind., and who attended Indiana University and the American Academy of Art in Chicago, before she began drawing fashion art and posing for advertising artists there, said it was the longest train ride she ever had, and that when she received the studio order to come West at once, all my clothes were at the cleaners, and all my laundry out at the washwoman’s, and I had to catch the next train.

EDITORIAL
Henry Ford's Idea - Sounds Interesting?
The News-Sentinel, Feb. 14, 1933

Henry Ford's ideas for dividing up industrial plants into thousands of small factories scattered over the country were recently expounded in the New York Times. Mr. Ford remarked that there are now 5,300 manufacturers making parts for his cars, and he thinks there ought to be 50,000 of them.

Mr. Ford has for some years held that life in the rural districts could be revived by arrangements by which the country people should turn out industrial merchandise as well as agricultural products. Apparently his idea is somewhat similar to old time systems of production, in which much of the work of factories was done in people's homes, or little village shops.

In the shoe manufacturing business, for instance, it was formerly customary in many communities, for the factory managers to send out their leather to the homes, where the women stitched the uppers together, or the men attached the soles to the uppers, and performed other processes. This system was generally abandoned, because workmen assembled in factories could perform these processes with machinery at less expense.

But these old fashioned methods had advantages. Farmers and village people found occupations for idle days. These methods checked the herding of people in great cities.

If Mr. Ford can devise plans by which country and small town people can find occupations for hours during which they would otherwise be idle, or unable to sell their labor to advantage, he will perform an inestimable service. Electric power should give the little home town shop an advantage not possessed in the little old rural shop of former days. Those old labors were performed by hand, but today the mighty arm of electric power reaches out into innumerable farms and villages.

SPECIAL MOVIE TRAINING
Margaret McConnell Receives
The News-Sentinel, Mar. 13, 1933

A recent news story appearing in the Chicago Tribune, reports:
Hollywood, Cal., Mar. 10 - (Chicago Tribune Press Service) - Margaret McConnell, the Chicago advertising girl beauty, isn’t getting rich in her venture into the movies, having been assigned to her first actual screen job just before the eight weeks’ half salary rule went into effect, but she says she’s getting a liberal education.

MGM studio, which put the brown-eyed, raven-haired beauty under contract for seven years—providing her successive options are renewed—thinks well enough of Miss McConnell’s film future to have her under Oliver Hinsdale and Dr. Fleischmann as daily drama and voice instructors. More than that she is learning technique by acting as "stand-in-girl" for Benita Hume in the all star cast which is polishing (126)
Service into screen form under Director Clarence Brown.

Watching Lew Stone Miss Hume and Elizabeth Allen, who, like the Hume girl, is an English importation, go through 500 feet of intricate acting business and emotional dialogue with Miss McConnell yesterday, I saw Director Brown sneak a peek at the McConnell girl, who seemed as wrapped up in the emotion of the scene as the principals themselves. Alice in Wonderland, the director murmured softly.

TOURIST CAMP CARETAKER

Dutch John Kreigle Retires

The News-Sentinel, Mar. 15, 1933

At the regular meeting of the city council held Tuesday evening William Foore, of this city, was appointed caretaker of the Rochester city tourist camp and park which is located at the southwestern edge of the city.

Dutch John Kreigle, former caretaker, who will be 90 years of age on July 3rd this year, has been placed on the retired list, with a nominal pension being granted him throughout the remainder of his life. With the action taken last night by the city fathers Uncle Dutch completed 67 years of service as a city employee.

In an interview with the former caretaker, today, he stated he came to this country from Hanover, Germany when a lad of nine or ten years of age. For a few years he resided with an uncle in Napoleon, Ohio, and from that city he removed to Rochester. His first job in this city was that of a handy man at the old Central Hotel which at that time was operated by Newt Nellans.

After working several years in the hostelry he resigned to accept a job as street cleaner for the city, which job he held until he was appointed caretaker of the Rochester Tourist camp several years ago.

Uncle Dutch is now comfortably located in the upstairs rooms of the city building, located just east of the city hall where city officials and firemen keep in close touch as to the welfare of the retired employee. Mr. Kreigle has been doing his own house-keeping since the death of his second wife which occurred in the year of 1922. His first wife, Barbara, who was also a native of Germany, passed away 22 years ago.

The retired caretaker stated he was still in good enough physical condition to do such odd jobs as mowing lawns, spading gardens and other light chores and would solicit his numerous friends for work this spring and summer. "Uncle Dutch said he would exchange such services in return for clothing, meals or food-stuffs.

FREE SWAP AD ENDED
Resultds Satisfactory
The News-Sentinel, Apr. 1, 1933

With today’s issue the News-Sentinel’s free Swap Advertising column will come to a close. The purpose of this offer was to familiarize the people of this community with the results which may be obtained through the use of this form of advertising.

Although no accurate check-up of results on the hundreds of small Swap ads. was attempted, voluntary reports from the “traders” proved beyond a doubt that better than 70 percent of these advertisements proved successful. In addition to the “for trade” feature several people seeking various forms of work reported they were able to find employment through the medium of this column.

The manager of the Swap column knows of only one instance where a “for swap” advertisement failed to bring in any prospects for the advertiser and this was the adv. in which “Dad” Squires tried to trade his rather aged, and somewhat dilapidated general “hawling” horse for a later model of the equine species. “Dad” frankly admits he has no faith in the power of the swap ads. Rather a severe test tho, thinks the publisher.

ROCHESTER BOWLING ALLEYS
To Be in Hoover Bldg.
The News-Sentinel, Apr. 4, 1933

The first bowling alleys Rochester has had in many years will be thrown open to the public on or about Thursday, April 13. Four alleys will be ready for action at that time. It was announced Mayor Charles Jones will have the honor of tossing the first ball down the alleys.

The alleys are located in the Hoover Building at 601 Main street. They will be managed by Clinton H. Muchnic of New York City who will be assisted by Elliott Bailey who has returned to this city to make his home.

Mr. Muchnic is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He has been associated with the Otis Elevator Company and the Union Switch and Signal Company. It is the plan of Mr. Muchnic to form teams for both ladies and men and to schedule games with teams from nearby cities.

Sport lovers will be handed a real treat with the opening of the new standard duck pin bowling alleys. This form of amusement, has been sweeping the country by storm during the past few months. Twelve young men will be given employment as pin setters and six young ladies as score keepers.

Construction of the alleys to be known as Rochester Bowling Alleys was started today with local carpenters being employed whenever possible. With a large crew working completion of the set-up in time for the grand opening was assured.

All equipment being installed comes from the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. All four alleys at this time will be for duck-pin bowling with ten-pin alleys to be installed in the fall at the advent of the winter bowling season. Duck-pins are popular in the summer season because they are less strenuous than ten-pins although just as intresting.

The alleys, pins, balls and other equipment are of the select class and all are brand new. The management of the alleys stresses cleanliness and respectability and an atmosphere of refinement and the bowling alleys are expected to be just as much an inducement for women as for men. In many cities one-third of the bowlers are women.

EMPLOYMENT CAMPS
To Be Set Up In Indiana
The News-Sentinel, Apr. 10, 1933
Indianapolis, April 10, -- Governor Paul V. McNutt announced yesterday that Indiana has completed arrangements for immediate establishment of two federal reforestation camps in this state and for the recruiting of the approximately 6,000 men who will be sent to similar camps in all parts of the country from Indiana.
Approximately $925,000 will be spent in the Indiana camp if the plan is approved. The governor said the camps in Indiana can be set up as soon as final authorization is received from Washington.
He said lists of Indiana men available for work will be forwarded to Washington.
Indications are that Indiana will be included in the third 25,000 men to be enrolled before May 1. Under the plan drafted by the governor, the two camps in this state will be set up at the Morgan-Monroe county forest and the Clark county forest.

Two hundred men will be employed at each place. The federal plan calls for the recruiting of men between the ages of 18 and 25 to plant, protect and improve public owned forests. The project will extend over two years but workers will be recruited for six month periods with the privilege of extensions of six months.

The men will go to a two-weeks conditioning camp before beginning work and the government will pay all costs of transportation.

When the work is started the men will receive one dollar a day and food, lodging and clothing. An effort is to be made to have each send from $20 to $25 a month to his family.

Other projects which may be proposed later for Indiana will include similar camps at the Jasper-Pulaski game preserve and the Brown county game preserve.

The governor said recruits will be selected by local relief agencies. He said there is not to be any registration of applicants but township poor relief lists will serve that purpose.

EDITORIAL
Facing The Future
The News-Sentinel, May.15, 1933

Henry Ford remarks that the American people are facing the future, that they have made a complete turn around. Instead of curing the troubles of depression by the old financial and political machinery that has gotten out of gear, they are adopting new methods and plans, and are entering on a new era.

But this spirit is not new. Every pioneer colonist who crossed the ocean in the old days showed this same ability to strike-out into an unknown future. He sailed across an ocean that was of terrific extent for those days, with scarce a conception of the hostile and terrifying condition he had to meet.

The settling of the great west of our country was another example of this resolute facing of the future. The pioneers toiled over those endless plains, and it took them months to cover ground that our trains and airplanes cover in a few hours. They found perils absolutely unknown in their quiet villages in the east. They had faith in their power to meet all unknown terrors.

These bold pioneers did not by any means break with their past. They were not destructive iconoclasts, who scornfully rejected all the old civilization had to teach them. They brought with them laws and schools and churches and customs that were much like those left behind, only the new way of living avoided many old evils.

Our people have concluded today that it is wrong that large elements of our population are plunged in dire poverty. Something must be done to give them opportunity. A country in which masses of people are not able to procure the necessities of life, must somehow open the way to providing those necessities. The American people have resolved to do that, and in so doing, they are in Mr. Ford’s words, resolutely facing the future.

EDITORIAL
 Everybody Has To Pay
The News-Sentinel, May.27, 1933
The American people will be paying debts contracted during the World War, for a generation after the war closed. And they will be paying for years to come, the debts which the recent depression is imposing on the country. The government is now going to enter on a large program of public works to furnish employment for the idle. They need the work, and public sentiment says we must loosen up somehow, and give it to them.

But a good many people who clamor for something to be done to provide such work, are not equally enthusiastic when it comes to paying taxes for it. They generally look for someone else to pay taxes.

The common theory is that new taxes should be levied upon the people of wealth. But there are not so many people of wealth as there were. These folks have the legal right, if the taxes appear to them to be too heavy, to put their money into tax exempt bonds. So when people demand more expenditure by the government to find work for the idle, everybody has to help pay for it. In times like these, it is necessary to spend money for relief purposes, but people should not get the idea that they can enter upon liberal expenditures without having to pay for it. When taxes go up, everybody is hit, directly or indirectly.

If the federal government cannot pay its ordinary bills, and if it keeps running into debt for some costs, it is not operated on business principles. If it wants to maintain its credit it must quit that imprudent policy. But if its expenditures provide permanent additions to the resources of the nation, the expenditure may be well justified. However, people should always understand, that when they vote to have the government run into debt, they vote more taxes which they will have to help pay themselves.

PIKE LUMBER CO., AKRON
Helen Pike Runs Her Own Sawmill
The News-Sentinel, July 26, 1933

A feature story of an Akron girl who has made good in business in her own way recently appeared in The Michigan City Dispatch. The young lady is Miss Helen Pike, daughter of Mr. & Mrs., D.A. Pike well known in the Akron and Rochester communities. A picture of Miss Pike was carried with the story and the same write-up later appeared in The Plain-Dealer at Wabash where the Pikes formerly lived. The story follows:

"I told my daddy I wanted a saw-mill of my own and I no sooner said it than I got it-just like that."

The words are those of buxom Miss Helen Pike, young woman from Akron, Ind., who has the distinction of being the only woman operating a sawmill in LaPorte county and possibly in the entire state. She also manages another mill for her father now operating near North Liberty.

(152)
We have been working in the woods about three miles west of the prison farm—about seven and a half miles from Michigan City, but we had to shut down because we ran out of wood, she explained.

Runs Mill Herself

Yes, she actually operates the sawmill herself. She’s the boss of the works and the 20-odd men she employs regard her as such. She knows her business, too. She should, for she’s been helping her father run his business since she was old enough to add and subtract.

Her dad’s a sawmill man, too. Helen says he has a big one at their town of Akron and several other smaller ones like hers scattered over Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. He is head of the D.A. Pike Lumber Company.

Gosh, you ought to see my mill when it’s running, Miss Pike said enthusiastically. It’s the slickest little thing you ever want to see. I tell you I’m mighty proud of that sawmill and so are my men. They work like beavers for me when there’s wood to saw up, and I’m just more than sorry we’re not going right now, only we ran out of wood.

Would Buy Timber

Miss Pike said she was in hopes of buying up some timber in this immediate locality so that she would be able to stay here. She likes the Lake Michigan country, loves to bathe at the beach and has an eye for the possibility of enjoying all of her favorite sports in this region. She is particularly fond of swimming, tennis and golf, she confided.

And she has her hobbies, too, chief of them being the making of porch and lawn furniture from bits of wood left over from sawing trees into lumber and railroad ties. She has presented many of her friends sets of porch furniture since she started her hobby.

Looks Like Tom-boy

A regular tom-boy in riding breeches, boots, man’s shirt and her hair curtailed to less than a boyish bob with what’s left of that concealed under a cap—that’s Miss Pike. Attractive though she is with just a trace of a dimple when she beams her broad smile, she could easily be mistaken for an up-and-coming young man of the woods.

And that, in a sense, is just what she wants to be. For she is going to attend the University of Wisconsin next fall just so she can study forestry along with the men students and get the kind of a course in forestry that men get. Her classes will all be under the supervision of men supplied by the Federal government from the Department of the Interior - another reason she is going to Wisconsin.

Went To Manchester
Miss Pike attended Manchester College during the past two years. She enjoyed small college life a lot but feels that she should take up the study of her life work next fall.

I've been in the woods all my life, she says. I don't know of any more natural thing than for me to want to take up forestry.

Suspecting she was a pampered only child, we asked her if there were any other children in her family.

Yes, I have two other sisters, one older and one younger than I, she said brightly, but my dad says I am the boy of the family.

And in the endeavor to seek out the distinctly feminine side of this remarkable came out without thought, an intimate question which brought a blush.

No Time For Boys
No, there were no boy friends.

If they're right, the men are all right with me. There's no particular one yet and I'm not of the opinion there ever will be.

Anyway I'm too young to think about that now, she said simply.

Miss Pike drives her own car, comes and goes as she pleases with all of the liberty of a modern business woman. The only thing that belies her position is her youth, but in spite of that she appears able to take care of herself under any conditions.

She is distinctly sociable, loves human contacts and is most interesting as a conversationalist. Boy, howdy, is one of her favorite expletives.

Started in May
She's just the type of wholesome young woman who typifies American life at the finest, the kind of real feminine personage to be found in no other country today.

Her sawmill has been going steadily since she assumed ownership in May. Men with families have been working every day making railroad ties which she has a market for as rapidly as they can be hewn out of timber.

But she will have to find more timber to which she can move her sawmill before operations can begin again. She hopes to be able to buy up a tract of woods near Michigan City so she can work in this vicinity.

And in view of the fact that she likes her sawmill so well, it wouldn't be surprising if she moved it to Wisconsin's woods so she can keep on operating while attending school next winter.

NATIONAL RECOVERY ACT (NRA)
Criticised by Chicago Editor
_The News-Sentinel_, Oct. 18, 1933

Chicago, Oct. 18 (U.P.) - Danger that the NRA may be a step toward American dictatorship was pointed today at a conference of more than 200 members of the Inland Daily Association, representing 254 mid-western newspapers.

Criticism of the NRA for its dictatorship aspects was made by Phil S. Hanna, editor of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, in an address in which he declared "the hope for democracy lies in a free press."

"Would anybody have thought a year ago," asked Mr. Hanna, "that the secretary of Agriculture would be given power to prevent a ... (163) man from selling milk for what he chose in the Chicago area?

Would anybody have dreamed the time would come when a government official would talk boycott and cracking down on employees who differ with political leaders about the method of bringing back recovery?

And bring the matter closer to home did anyone remotely think the day might come when the government would try to license newspapers?

Discussing the checks afforded by newspapers on bad government, Hanna declared the press of the nation represents the first line of defense of freedom.

AKRON MILK PLANT
To Close First of the Year
The News-Sentinel, Nov. 28, 1933

A severe financial blow was struck at Akron and 267 families living mostly in Henry township Monday, when a statement was posted by the Borden Farms Products Company of Illinois that their milk plant located in Akron would close down permanently early on December 31st.

The plant which has been the center of one of the bright financial spots in Fulton county in recent years has been paying out to the farmers of that community on an average of $25,000 to $30,000 per month in cash and this income was divided among 267 farmers who delivered milk to the station daily.

Those who have watched the milk situation in Chicago, explain the move by saying that while milk production has increased here and elsewhere that consumption has decreased in the Chicago market. All of the milk from Akron is shipped by train to Hammond then is sold in Chicago. Also the fact that Akron is beyond the hundred mile limit which brings an increase of freight rates is thought to have something to do with the closing. It is also known that the hundreds of milk producers living west of Chicago have been for some time demanding that the Bordens buy their milk, claiming a shorter haul and that they trade in Chicago.

McCONNELL, MARGARET
Visits Kewanna
The News-Sentinel, Jan. 3, 1934

The Kewanna community has been brightened considerable during the holidays by the visit back home of one of its own girls who is making a successful start as a screen player in Hollywood. The attractive young lady is Miss Margaret McConnell, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. R.W McConnell of Kewanna, and she is with her parents to spend her first vacation from the screen duties and to tell her admiring relatives and friends all about her experiences.

When a reporter from The News-Sentinel called at her home and informed the young lady that this newspaper wanted a story about her she was genuinely flustered and protested against any publicity here where she said "the folks all knew her." But she consented to tell a little about herself how she got into the movies and then modestly added that her parts were "ridiculously small" and that she never knew whether she would be in a film one minute, one time or ten. As for her future on the screen she is going to let that take care of itself.

Miss McConnell was born at Oxford, Indiana, but has spent much of her life at Kewanna, graduating from high school there. Ambitious for a career she studied diligently and won a scholarship at the University of Indiana where she attended for a year and was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Believing her future lay in the world of art she went to Chicago the following year and enrolled at the American Academy and at the National Academy of Art. She developed rapidly as an artist and a number of her sketches have since appeared on magazine covers.

While attending art school she attracted the attention of advertising artists and next she found herself selected as a model for nation-wide cigaret advertisements. Becoming known as, "that girl in the cigaret ads," she attracted the attention of Hollywood movie directors who are always looking for beauty and new talent. Just as she was planning to leave for New York to continue modeling, telegrams and letters began to arrive from an official of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. She paid no attention to these for a time and then a brother-in-law of the official came through Chicago and dropped in to see her. At his insistence she had a number of pictures taken and he sent these to the studio in California. Later the official and his brother-in-law came through Chicago again and in a short time she had signed a contract.
She returned with them to Hollywood last February and after establishing herself a home with her brother she awaited her first studio call.

First Screen Test

Her screen test was particularly trying and from her own viewpoint a complete failure she said. While the camera ground out the film she was instructed to, "make love," to an old bachelor who turned his back on her, not affected by her entreaties. When she talked she said her voice sounded like that of a two-year-old child and she admitted that she was, "just scared to death." Leaving the studio certain of the fact that she had made a complete, "flop", in her big chance she went home and started packing ready to take a train back to Chicago. In the midst of this came a telephone call from the studio with an official saying she had passed the test and would be used in coming pictures. That changed everything and naturally she decided to stay.

Since then she has had small parts in several outstanding productions including "Reunion In Vienna," "Dancing Lady," "Tugboat Annie," and "The Hollywood Party." The latter picture was an idea of the studio in which they presented all of their youthful talent and beauty gathered from the entire country to the public in one film. Her last film was in a technicolor cooking short which will appear soon.

Meet The Stars

Upon Miss McConnell's return to Hollywood at the end of this month she has been cast for bits in "Operator 13" in which Marion Davies and Gary Cooper play the lead roles. Her contract is optional yearly to run for a period of seven years. She admits she enjoys mingling with all the movie and stage stars and says they are the finest and most considerate people in the world. She told about the earthquake which struck that section last summer and how she dropped down under a table at the studio. Lewis Stone, character actor, found her there and carried her outside to safety. One experience after another in the movie capital makes life exceedingly thrilling for the attractive young lady and gives everyone back home plenty of interesting entertainment to hear her tell about it.

Walter Perry
The News-Sentinel, Jan. 24, 1934

Walter Perry, son of Mr. L.B. Perry, instructor of industrial arts in Rochester High School, has attained a high standard of success while still in his thirties. Walter Perry is the superintendent of the Commercial Refrigeration Mfg. Co. at Los Angeles, Calif.

Mr. Perry takes a personal interest in every order coming into the plant. The editor of the SUPERCOLD NEWS says in his monthly publication, "Walt watches over orders like a hen does over her chicks and many times accomplishes almost super-human results in satisfying every one as to delivery dates."

Because of a pleasing personality Mr. Perry is well liked by the men under him and can get out more work per man than most superintendents. Mr. Perry is known as "Walt to all men in the factory. Even the factory slogan shows what he means to the company. The factory slogan is "Let Walt do it - Walt dos it, and in good shape, too.

Though very much endowed with the enthusiasm of youth, Mr.
Perry's experience is equivalent to ordinary men twice his age. He is a mechanical engineer, refrigeration engineer, mechanical draughtsman and knows the ins and outs of all wood working and metal working machinery.

After graduating from R.H.S. in 1918, Mr. Perry took a three-year course of chemical engineering at Purdue and then went to California. He worked there in the National Show Case Company and then in the Pacific Show Case Company. In 1929 he accepted a position with the Commercial Refrigeration Mfg. Co. as a draughtsman and designer. Soon after that, he was promoted to foremanship over one department, but was soon made foreman over the entire plant of seven departments. In 1933 Mr. Perry completed his course in chemical engineering at the University of California. In November of 1933, he was made superintendent of the SuperCold Refrigerator plant in Los Angeles.

Discontent
The News-Sentinel, March 21, 1934

Henry Ford said in a recent interview that he is glad to see so many people dissatisfied. He feels that the world is run by dissatisfied people and that when people are thus discontented they are willing to take hold and create better conditions.

While such discontent should not take the form of useless kicking, large achievement finds its roots in a feeling of dissatisfaction. If you find some man building up a fine business his ambition came from his discontent with the narrow conditions of his previous life. Many men have thus risen out of narrow conditions, and it was this discontent with these conditions that supplied the spur with which they went out and conquered the world.

When you see some going ahead, it is usually because some group of people became dissatisfied with the inadequate conditions then existing. Their dissatisfaction spurred them on to organize movements that would create improvement.

There is much discontent that is merely negative and accomplishes nothing. There are knockers and kickers everywhere who are always dissatisfied. They growl and complain, but they are rarely found taking hold of any constructive movement. Many such ones are dissatisfied with their lot in life, but they do not try to make themselves more useful to the world, so they will command better opportunities.

Mere discontent unaccompanied by useful action simply spreads discouragement, and paralyzes the capacity for achievement. But discontent accompanied by intelligent action was the force that led Columbus to discover a new world, that led American pioneers to settle the great West, and is all the time working for better communities and industrial conditions.

BARNHART, HENRY A.
Eulogy
The News-Sentinel, March 27, 1934

Through the writing of the closing chapter in the life of Henry A. Barnhart, death has dealt a heavy blow to the family, friends and community. Yet, while the gamut of human emotions may register deepest in sorrow, there is solace in the knowledge that Mr. Barnhart's career was replete with deeds, commendable deeds, of which those who mourn, may ever be proud.

Reared in the humblest of rural surroundings, under the tutelage of what would now be termed homespun Christian parentage, Mr. Barnhart, early in life established a well defined demarcation between right and wrong, and from these simple but powerful classifications of all human deeds he stood and fought indomitably for what he deemed was just.

Mr. Barnhart, while still a young man assumed an important role in the civic, political and general activities of Rochester and Fulton county. During his two score of years as editor and publisher of the Rochester Sentinel, he was a fearless exponent for every worth-while movement for the betterment of the community. It was during his regime in the newspaper field that his outstanding personality, together with his desire to be a sincere friend of those in all walks of life, finally embarked him on a political career, under the Democratic banner which gained the plaudits of even many of adverse political faith. During his six terms in the United States legislative chambers, he served his constituents, district, state and nation, in such an unbiased, business-like manner that the word "politician" in a professional sense was never connected with the name of Congressman Barnhart.

Following his retirement from national legislative activity, Mr. Barnhart devoted his untiring energies to the welfare of Rochester, his neighbors, friends, the unfortunates, his family and his church. During the latter months of his life, he derived much pleasure through an active interest in the progress being made on the Federal Fish Hatchery at Lake Manitou, and it may be said it was largely through his friendship with former colleagues at Washington, D.C., that the project was secured for Rochester.

Perhaps, in this brief comment on the passing of a citizen and friend, who has left an indelible mark of honesty, efficiency and helpfulness, which will ever be remembered in this community, one of the finest tributes to Henry A. Barnhart, may be said in these few words: He was a lover of his fellowman, of nature, of wholesome humor, of his home, his family and his church.

HOUSE, HELEN
First Fulton County Woman Flyer
The News-Sentinel, May 1, 1934 (Phoro South Bend Tribune)

Miss Helen House is to be congratulated as being Fulton County’s first girl to make a solo airplane flight. Miss House is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Walter House, who reside on the northwest side of Lake Manitou, one mile east of Rochester.

Miss House has been interested in airplanes for many years, but not until recently did she think her dream of flying a ship would come true. When the municipal airport was located here, Miss House became more “air minded” than ever and decided to take up aviation. Under the direction of Rudy VanDevere, she took her first lesson on April 4th.

VanDevere owns and operates the Indiana Air Service, South Bend. He has four planes in his hangar at the Bendix airport. VanDevere has many friends in Rochester as he has come here in his airplane on numerous occasions while supervising construction of the local airport.

Three Weeks Instruction

On April 25th, just three weeks after Miss House had taken her first lesson, she made her first solo flight and previous to this she had taken just 6-1/2 hours of instruction. It is unusual to make a solo flight with less than eight or ten hours of instruction. The first solo fight took her in the air about ten minutes as the aviator took off, circled the field and landed. She handled the plane perfectly, the instructor said afterwards. Miss House is the first girl under the tutelage of Mr. VanDevere to make a solo flight, but a girl from South Bend is also studying under him at present.

When asked what she planned to do in aviation, Miss House stated she wanted to work up and receive her commercial license this summer so she could take up passengers at the Rochester airport. To gain a commercial license, Miss House will have to obtain 60 hours of solo flights to her credit and also pass a written and flying examination.
Her next ambition is to work in with some company as a demonstrator.
It is expected that she will go on the Annual Indiana Air Tour over the state this summer.

Miss House is 19 years of age. She attended Rochester High School two years, and then went to California where she was graduated from the High School at El Cajon, California. She recently passed a test of perfect health. She spends most of her time in South Bend now, where she takes instruction from Mr. VanDever and studies instruction books. Her next lesson, those which she will take up this week, will probably be on "Dead Stick Landing."

BALL ICE CO. ICE HOUSE
Destroyed by Fire
The News-Sentinel, May 2, 1934

Fire of an unknown origin which was discovered at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, destroyed the ice house of the Ball Ice Company at the south end of Lake Manitou. William Ball, owner of the ice company estimates his loss at $2,000 which is fully covered by insurance.

The ice house was a 30x40 foot structure and contained 800 tons of ice which had been cut during the winter at Lake Manitou. It is thought half of the ice can be salvaged.

The ice house was built last summer after a much larger one belonging to the Ball company was leveled during a windstorm on June 8.

The Rochester fire department was greatly hampered in fighting the fire because minnows would stop up the screen at the end of the suction hose which was placed in Lake Manitou.

On several occasions the pumper had to be stopped while minnows were taken from the suction hose.

EDITORIAL
Stimulating Construction
The News-Sentinel, May 12, 1934

The American people want to hear the sound of the hammer, putting up homes for the people, mostly small homes, at moderate prices so that the masses of the people shall be able to purchase them. The National Emergency council is working on plans to stimulate such (188) construction and other of the so-called heavy industries. If a house building boom could be started all over the land, it would put millions of idle people to work.

There is a need for these houses. Millions of families are living in a doubled-up condition. Innumerable young folks, who want their own little rooftree and fireside, are living with the old folks. Many of them would be able to rent or buy a small home, but rent or price must be low.

Many of these folks flew high in the boom times and bought or rented homes beyond their means. Their wings have been clipped since then. They figure their spending ability now with relation to their earning ability and they consider that there must be some margin for saving.

The construction industry has probably been the lowest of the big activities to feel the spur of business revival. While the clothing and shoe factories and the food manufacturers have been busy supplying the needs of the people, the construction industries are still going slow, waiting for the savings of the people to set them to work.

Starting them in motion comes down largely to two questions. Can money be borrowed to finance such construction, Will the costs of material and labor be such that the public can buy the product?

It would look as if everyone would have to make some concessions to get a real building boom started. If money could be loaned at lower rates of interest, if materials could be provided at lower prices, if labor would work for less in order to obtain more regular work, it would look as if a product could be turned out that would find a market.

COLONIAL HOTEL
Builds Drive and Balcony Pavilion
The News-Sentinel, May 16, 1934

At least two or three major improvements are now underway at the Colonial Hotel grounds preparatory to the opening of this popular Lake Manitou resort.

Perhaps the most important of the changes which will aid in the handling of the large crowds which trek to the grounds throughout the week ends during the summer months is the building of a new 60 foot wide driveway from the Lake Shore highway up to the hotel.

This new road, which passes thru one end of the large lagoon where a six foot fill has been necessitated, will eliminate all sharp turns.
and provide ample room for two lines of two car traffic in either direction. A 40-foot center strip throughout the entire length of the new driveway will be hard-surfaced. This new entrance will be completed and ready for use on or before Decoration Day, it was stated. Upon the completion of the drive, the berm and banks of the lagoon will be landscaped with shrubbery, evergreens and flowers.

While this road is under construction, a crew of ten carpenters are busily engaged in erecting a 30 by 140 foot supplementary dance pavilion which will skirt the main pavilion floor on the second story of the premises. This entire space which last year was used as a promenade is being enclosed with permanent roofing, and side walls are being equipped with windows and screening which can be instantly interchanged depending on weather conditions. The flooring for this new dance balcony will be of hardwood.

ROCHESTER MUNICIPAL AIRPORT
Inspected and Praised
The News-Sentinel, May 26, 1934

Rochester may not have the largest airport in the state but it certainly is going to have one of the best, was the statement made here Friday evening by Robert F. Shank, assistant state airport advisor, who spent several hours in the city. Shank came here to inspect the field, which is now under construction, and to confer with those in charge.

Shank advised that one of the proposed runways be changed slightly so that it would afford more open approaches from both ends and also proposed that other sections outside the runways be planted in grass seed. Your field is going to be perfect in that it is entirely level and if you enlarge the grass lanes it will give take off and landing ways in any direction which after all is the ideal field, he said.

G.A.R. INDIANA MEMBERSHIP
Now Only 240 Members
The News-Sentinel, May 26, 1934

Indianapolis, May 26 - Death has depleted the ranks of the department of Indiana of the G.A.R. until not more than 240 members of that organization are alive in the state today, it was disclosed here as plans were forwarded for the annual encampment to be held at Muncie, June 17 to 20 inclusive.

Undaunted by the ravages of death among the host of union soldiers, who once stood with Grant at Appomattox or marched with Sherman to the sea, the G.A.R. department headquarters today was planning with enthusiasm for the Muncie encampment.

“We are working hard to bring young Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who was wounded in the World war, to our encampment as the principal speaker,” Joseph Henninger, of Indianapolis, assistant quartermaster general of the G.A.R., said here.

“We have been told that every G.A.R. Veteran who goes to Muncie will be given an airplane ride if he wishes one,” said Quartermaster Henninger, with a sparkle in his undimmed eyes.

Tracing briefly the history of the G.A.R., he said:

“The G.A.R. was originated in Decatur, Ill., in 1866. The first national encampment was held in Indianapolis.

In 1890 the national organization had half a million members and the Indiana department had 28,173 members. That was the peak membership year. Now, in Indiana we have but 82 posts left with but 240 members,” said Henninger.

The American Legion has volunteered to aid in the transportation of the G.A.R. members to and from Muncie, Abbott Johnson, of Muncie, district commander of the Legion reported.

A.E. Needham, of Muncie, was named general chairman of the committee arranging for the June encampment.

G.A.R. ROCHESTER
Has Only Two Boys Left
The News-Sentinel, May 29, 1934

Only 79 of the original 593 G.A.R. posts in Indiana will be represented at the 55th encampment to be held at Muncie from June 17 to 21. The 79 posts some of which have only one member, have on their rolls a grand total of 239 members, according to reports from Joseph B. Henninger, department adjutant general.

(193)
From the high peak years of 1889 and 1890, when the total membership in the organization reached 28,000 members with 593 posts, there has been a gradual decline.

City’s Lone Delegate

Rochester will be represented in the Muncie encampment, and probably the national encampment which will be held at Rochester, N.Y., sometime in September. This city’s lone representative will be John Shelton.

Although Rochester does not have any active organization, it is recognized as a post at Indianapolis. The two survivors in Rochester are Adam Nye and Mr. Shelton.

Mr. Shelton was the last commander of the local post, and held that position for over 12 years. He is still active although he is 87 years of age.

Asked whether he would take the free airplane ride offered all G.A.R. Veterans at Muncie in June, Mr. Shelton declined and said he was apt to meet enough accidents on the ground, let alone in an airplane.

The largest membership they ever had at any one time here was approximately 100 which was immediately after the post was organized, said Mr. Shelton. There were many more in the county but they declined to belong, he said.

The former commander was surprised to learn that no Memorial day program of any kind had been arranged in Rochester. Recalling former years when the Post was active, Mr. Shelton said that at one time they had $300 in the treasury and in years of that kind flowers were purchased for all the soldiers’ graves. Now there are approximately 100 buried at the Odd Fellows Cemetery and 40 at the Citizens Cemetery, so it is impossible to decorate all graves. Because of that, one grave is decorated in memory of them all.

Mr. Shelton’s formula for living so long, was not asked, but came voluntarily. Don’t smoke, drink, or chew and you will live to be an old man was the veteran’s advice. Quit smoking 30 years ago, and I have not touched a cigar to my lips since, he said.

CHAR-BELL THEATRE
Installs New Talkie Apparatus
The News-Sentinel, June 6, 1934

Kriegbaum Bros. proprietors of the Char-Bell Theatre this city have just completed the installation of a new Webster All-Electric Theatre Amplifier Talking Picture Apparatus. This new machinery which is said to be the last word in talkie equipment is designed to automatically take care of the new high fidelity and wide-range or recording systems as well as the RCA and Western Electric recordings.

The old talking apparatus at the Char-Bell was unable to reliably reproduce the new high fidelity recordings, which system is now being used by practically all of the leading film companies.

Another feature which the theatre-going public will be glad to learn is that the new Webster recording amplifier installed at the Char-Bell will permit the use of the theatre’s air-washing and ventilating system. The older type of talking apparatus at the advent of the high fidelity recordings could scarcely be heard at all when the management attempted to use their electrical and water ventilating system.

Those who heard the new equipment in use Tuesday evening were loud in their praise of clearness of the talkies and also the coolness of the theatre.

COFFING, JOFF
Writes to His Sister

Six years ago Joff Coffing, the sage of Piety Hill in Macy, wrote to his sister Ŕţinkô to tell her about the Coffing family. Today Mr. Coffing, 84 years of age, lies quite ill at his home but he continues to be his old cheerful self with a kindly feeling towards every one particularly his family and children. And recently he sent a request to the editor of The News-Sentinel (who prides himself in being listed among his legion of friends) that the letter be printed for the benefit and enjoyment of the Coffings and others. And so here is the letter just as

(197)
Dear Sister: -

And the spirit said write and I wrote - not Paul’s letter to Timothy, but Joffy’s letter to Tink. I shall write mostly about the Coffing Family - not that they are better than other people but because I know more about them. No better than others, because we are all molded out of the same old clay pile.

Joshua Coffing was born (I suppose in Pennsylvania) August 9, 1788; Mary Davis was born September 25, 1791 and grew to man and womanhood and were married December 31, 1809, Mary Davis Coffing died August 23, 1850 and Joshua Coffing died August 29, 1850. To this union was born five sons and six daughters that grew to man and womanhood.

In the early fall of 1832 Joshua Coffing and his brother, Elysak, Nathan, a son-in-law of Joshua and another family whom I cannot remember, loaded their household goods and families in four Emigrant wagons and began a journey toward the setting sun and late in October of the same year landed in Knox County going some two or three miles farther into the dense forest than the other pioneers had gone and here camped in their wagons and under the trees until their cabins could be built and the last cabin was finished and all comfortably housed on their first Christmas day as real Pioneers.

Here the large family grew up and chose for themselves life’s partners and began the activities of life for themselves.

Thomas Davis Coffing, our father, chose for his companion, Sophia McDaniel, next youngest daughter of a family of two sons and six daughters born to Joel and Catherine Smith McDaniel who also came here from Southwest Pennsylvania. Davis, as he was mostly called by those who knew him, divided the first five years after marriage between living in Delaware and Knox Counties, Ohio.

But late in October 1854, our parents loaded their worldly belongings in a covered wagon and with a very uncertain team - one a balker and the other a kicker, started for a newer and wilder country stopping a couple of days in Oceola, a little village in Crawford County, Ohio with two of his brothers, Courtney and Alfred. After a short visit - we then took up our journey to Carrie Town and Finley, I think in Senica County and the black swamp in Putman County - staying over night at the edge of the swamp where we ate bear meat for supper and breakfast and continuing our journey - we landed at Thomas Sherman's on the bank of the Maumee River about nine miles west of Defiance County seat.

The Sherman family was four in number and here were four of us and he had two men helping him husk corn and all of us found comfortable shelter in this little one room cabin house. We remained here six weeks until the old Pioneer Cabin we were to live in which had not been occupied for some time could be repaired. This was a real pioneer cabin, I judge about 18x22 or 24 feet with one window, small at that, one door made of split boards fastened to the cross pieces or bats with wooden pins. The door hung on wooden hinges and I don't think there was a nail in the construction of the house. It had a stone fire place and stick and mud chimney - wooden door latch and catch and a leather string through a little hole in the door to lift the latch and if the latch string hung out it had a hearty welcome to all to come in - but if the latch string was drawn inside - it said no one at home and no trespassing. Pass on, the roof of this house made of four-foot clap boards and held in place by weight ples (sic) - let in some of the sunshine and most of the rain but we were happy here.

Here on the 6th of March 1855, the same being your Father's 27th birthday, you first saw the light of day - a little black haired squalling brat but we thought you kind of sweet at that.

For the first couple of years you seemed to divide your time between walking, sleeping and sitting on the floor with your toe in your mouth. Your next vocation was to watch the wiggle tails in the rain barrel and the tadpoles in the mud puddles along the little creek near the house. When you was about four years old or in 1859, we moved from the old pioneer cabin to what was known as the McAnally place; this seemed about like going from a hovel to a palace as this house was much more modern in its make up - being built of hewed logs - had three windows, a brick fireplace and chimney and was sealed overhead with thin lumber and the cracks was daubed with lime and straw mortor instead of mud and short straw daubing in the cabin.

Here you began your school days going to the little white school house about 100 rods from our house following a foot path and often your big brother carried you over the worst places which was often most of the way. The little school house was, I judge, about 20x40, or 26 feet and set on big blocks sawed from a large oak tree and sat up on end - this made the foundation for the house. We lived in this place two years and then moved back to the old cabin for one summer and in the fall of 1861 moved to the hewed log house on the Bluff of the old Maumee where we lived until October 1866 when we came to Miami County, Indiana landing here October 22, 1866 - just as the sun went down.

It was with many regrets that we left the old river as while there was some inconvenience about it as we could not always get across when we would like to have been on the other side - it had many advantages - as when it got on a rampage and overflowed all the lowlands it looked like it was doing much damage but it was a blessing in disguise as the silt deposit made by the overflow was equal to a coating of manure or a broad washing of commercial fertilizer as the farmers said they could afford to lose one crop every three to five years for the benefit of the overflow. But the river had many other advantages. It furnished an outlet or gate way for the surplus water from all the lands for miles in either side and when at medium height was a transportation company carrying much of the surplus timber such as hewed. September stores saw logs and hoop poles to the hills and factories farther down - even clean to the eastern coast.

And last but not least the fun of fishing and many stomachs were satisfied by the inroads made in the finney tribe and the wading in the water and hunting pretty stones and muscle shells and sliding on these in winter.

Well - now adieu to the River - but we miss you still but now back to Indiana.

Here you finished your school days and took on the greater responsibilities of real life - helping in the field and home and oh! the goosberry and cranberry pies you used to make when Levi was coming. I can taste them yet but have not smelled them since. You have played your part well in the social features of the community, spelling school, singing schoiols, Sunday school, Grange and Church - have been an ever ready helper in th sick room and death chamber and Father Time has dealt generous with you - allowing you the full three score and ten and you are now living on borrowed time and let us all hope that the lender will be generous and the receiver appreciating and that this may contnue for years yet to com.

HORSE RACING
O.M. Powell, breeder and racer

The News-Sentinel, June 6, 1934

A group of pencil sketches done by MacArthur for the Chicago Daily News and featuring scenes from the opening of the harness racing season in Chicago appeared in a late issue of that paper. Among the pencil sketches was a picture of O.M. Powell, grand old man of the trotting track who lives near Macy, Ind. Powell is the owner of Ima Patch, a horse which will race in Chicago soon. In the Friday issue of The News-Sentinel there appeared a story concerning Mr. Powell and written by Ted Damata of the Daily News sports staff.

Harness racing is staging a comeback, according to Damata, and it will soon be one of the popular sports again. An entire season of such racing recently opened in Chicago.

O.M. Powell is a well known horse breeder all over the mid-west. He has been in the business for years, and his filly, Ima Patch, entered in the Chicago races, is a direct descendant of Dan Patch, famous racing horse.

DENVER, IND. YOUTHS
Educated by Joan Crawford.

Bill and Don Donaldson are Denver, Indiana boys who were put through college in California, thanks to Joan Crawford, known throughout the United States as a movie star who heard of the predicament of the two Hoosiers who were practically penniless in the Western State and offered to help them. Early this year a celebration was held at Denver in honor Miss Crawford because she befriended two Denver’s sons. The following, a United Press dispatch:

Hollywood, Calif - Two Denver (Ind.) boys who hitch-hiked to California in search of an education two years ago, will be graduated from Compton Junior College next month, thanks to Joan Crawford.

Miss Crawford heard how Bill and Don Donaldson camped in the Hollywood hills and picked up odd jobs, hoping to earn sufficient funds to complete their education. Through her secretary she arranged to finance their studies. It was not until Christmas eve, 1932, that the boys learned the identity of their benefactress. The public is just finding out now.

Both boys will enter U.S.C. next fall. Bill is taking a pre-legal course, Don majors in business administration.

INDIANA'S OLDEST RESIDENT
Dies Near Disko
The News-Sentinel, Aug. 6, 1934

Mrs. Salome Myers, aged 105, the oldest resident of Indiana died at her home two miles east of Disko in the eastern part of Fulton County at 11:15 o'clock Saturday night. Death was due to leakage of the heart and high blood pressure. The aged lady had been bedfast for the past two weeks.

Mrs. Salome Myers lived with her two daughters, Mrs. Catherine Drudge and Mrs. Mary Secor in a three room log cabin which had been her home for the past 76 years. She had been in fair health until five weeks ago when she was seized with an ailment which doctors were unable to overcome. For the two weeks preceding her death Mrs. Myers had not taken any nourishment.

Born In Ohio

Mrs. Myers was born in Eaton, Ohio on October 29, 1828. When she was seven years old her parents, John and Hanna Dillman came in a covered wagon to make their home near Disko. Mrs. Myers despite her age assisted her parents in clearing their farm. Ninety-seven years ago a log cabin was built from trees which were felled on their farm. This cabin was built a short way south of the home in which Mrs. Myers resided at the time she died.

Mrs. Myers received a meager education from her parents and also by attending writing and spelling schools which were in vogue at that time. The schools were taught by itinerant school teachers or circuit riding ministers.

Killed In War

On September 7, 1854 the deceased was married to Peter Myers. Four years after their marriage the Myers built a log cabin which was the home of Mrs. Myers at the time of her death. Mrs. Myers assisted her husband in felling the trees for the cabin and also in hewing the logs from which it was constructed.

Mr. & Mrs. Myers married life was but for only a nine year period as he was drafted in the Civil War and went to fight for the North in that great conflict. Mr. Myers was killed on a Southern battlefield and was buried in the South. Despite the death of her husband Mrs. Myers who was the mother of four children, two boys and two girls, carried on and worked in the fields and managed her farm while she reared her children.

Honored Guest

Mrs. Myers last October 29 was the honored guest at a birthday party which was held in her honor by her daughters. They baked a cake for her on which 105 candles were placed. In addition to the members of her family over 500 guests called on Mrs. Myers during the day. The birthday was the first that Mrs. Myers was not able to distinguish her guests either by sight or hearing. Her eyesight had failed her during her 104th year and she was fast losing her sense of hearing.

On her birthday, Mrs. Myers daughters stated that each year their mother was visited by a large number of visitors. All of them had remarked at Mrs. Myers memory and the manner in which she could recall events of an earlier day. On the occasion of her 104th birthday the following story was carried in the News-Sentinel and was an account of Mrs. Myers life as it was related by her daughters. The story follows.

Never Had Cold

She has never known what it was to be ill and require the services of a doctor. So far as she can recall and to the knowledge of her daughters she has never had even a common cold. Until a year ago she helped with work around the home but now that blindness has come, the only thing she does is take care of herself.

During the last two weeks scores of persons called to see Mrs. Myers. Many were strangers who had heard of the elderly woman.

One of them said to me recently, I remarked Mrs. Drudge,
You ought to put up a box and charge admission to see this quaint little home and your mother, but I told her we never be that little and visitors are always welcome.

Mrs. Myers has lost some of the enthusiasm she previously displayed and is contented to sit and dream of other days.

Had To Watch Indians

She can recall the days when as a little girl and on the same land where she now lives she and her parents had to spend much of their time watching Indians to see that they did not steal the farm crops.

But she says, they were for the most part friendly. White folks had to be watched just the same as the Indians or they would have stolen our crops also.

Times have changed. I remember when my father had to ride fifty miles on horseback to have our corn ground. Now they have automobiles going by our farm all the time. Airplanes are a common sight. They can travel across the United States in less time than father had to spend going to the grist mills in Fort Wayne and Logansport. Then there were weeks at a time before we ever received any mail. Now the mail man passes our door every day.

Threw Fagots

Mrs. Myers also delights in telling how on winter nights she had to keep the wood fire going all night at times in order to provide her father with burning fagots which he would hurl from the doors and windows to keep wolves away.

Those nights were terrible and fearfully long when the wolves howled as they gathered around our cabin, she said.

Mrs. Myers is one of the few persons who have lived to see any of their children celebrate a golden wedding. Her son, E.L. Myers, and his wife have been married fifty-two years. The fourth child in the family, a son, was killed in a sawmill accident near Plymouth some years ago.

Three Centenarians

The death of Mrs. Myers marked the passing of the third centenarian who lived in the eastern part of Fulton County. The first to die was Dr E.A. Case, aged 101, who died at his home in Akron two years ago. The second was Mrs. Sarah Barnheisel, aged 103, who died last spring. All of the aged persons have met frequently during their declining years when they talked of events which had happened when they were younger. Mrs. Myers was a member of the Brethren Church which is located two miles east of her home.

LANDIS, FREDERICK
Eulogy
The News-Sentinel, Nov 19, 1934

A pall of sorrow which had its inception in Logansport completely enveloped Hoosierdom Saturday afternoon as a legion of friends well to do and poor, gathered at the Landis home to pay final tribute to one of the state’s most colorful and loveable personages, the Honorable Frederick Landis, congressman-elect of the Second district.

A member of a rugged Indiana family, brother of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, emperor of baseball, Fred, as he was known to his everyday friends, was a brilliant genius in his own estate. He was the author of several outstanding plays among which was the "Copperhead", a stirring drama of the Civil War days.

Frederick Landis had been active in political circles for many years, serving two terms in the lower house of the U.S. Legislative body. He was the only one of the 12 Republican candidates to score an overwhelming victory in the recent election and would have been the state’s only representative in either house. The Indiana statesman, Frederick Landis, will be sorely missed in home state and national circles, yet the memory of this brilliant statesman, orator and friend, will be cherished forever in the roster of Indiana’s truly great men.

MUCK LANDS STORY
The Prairie Farmer, Nov. 10th Issue
The News-Sentinel, Nov 20, 1934

It was the night before the full moon in October. Four of us stood in Whit Gast's potato field. The day had been warm, but on this low ground the night was cool enough. We talked about potatoes and onions, celery, cabbage and turnips, dill and head lettuce, celery cabbage and parsnips, pumpkins and cauliflower, and we talked some of mint. There were heaps of potato vines like haycocks in an alfalfa field. A big mechanical potato digger was resting after a hard day's work. The men had driven the big truckload of potatoes home from the field by moonlight.

The four of us walked across the field and as we walked, the earth shook, for this was a field of muck, the soil of almost pure vegetable matter, created through centuries of growth at the bottom and sides of a great lake, until at last the lake had become a marsh. Big drainage ditches and tile have taken out the excess water, and this Gast muck farm is now one of those which, becoming numerous in Northern Indiana, have added materially to the wealth of our great lake region.

W.K. Gast, the farm owner, N.S. Hadley, Fulton county agent, and Rosco Fraser, the muck crop man at Purdue, were talking about the methods and possibilities in muck farming.

"Through drainage, ample and intelligent fertilization, selecton of good varieties and good farming practices make muck crop growing a success," said Mr. Gast. "We are standing now where I grew the potato crop in 1933, which was the highest yield in the 400-bushel potato club. I did not quite make it this year, the test showing but 396 bushels per acre. I figured it for a dry season straight through, and so put the acre on the wettest part of the field. The late rains hurt considerably.

Muck Land Enthusiast

Gast is an enthusiastic muck crop farmer, a leader in the various things which are being done to create an interest in the muck crops of Northern Indiana, one who is doing much to help popularize these muck grown vegetables in the markets.

"We have had a lot to learn and still have," he said, "especially in producing quality potatoes. We can get the yield, but the tendency is to grow potatoes too large, causing growth cracks and hollow heart. The best growers are overcoming that by putting the rows much closer together and bringing the hills closer together in the rows. We have to overcome sunburn also, as there is a tendency for muck grown potatoes to grow too close to the top of the ground."

Under the light of the October moon, we dug out with our hands numerous hills of potatoes, and the light was bright enough to let Mr. Gast illustrate what he meant. Each year sees a marked improvement in the quality of potatoes grown on these mucklands of Northern Indiana.

Mint which is another crop of considerable importance on the Gast farm, suffered this year from severe winds of last spring, which blew much of the mint out of the ground. The same thing occurred with young onions on many muck farms, resulting in substitute crops being grown. One of these is celery-cabbage, one of the most beautiful looking vegetables.

"Americans have not developed much of an appetite for celery-cabbage," says Mr. Gast. "It is a Chinese vegetable and had not been on the Middle West markets long enough to be really appreciated. It is fine, however, used in salad, like lettuce, or cooked like cabbage."

Employment For Many

The harvesting of the muck crops in and around Akron, where there are numerous farmers on muck soil, makes a big call for help. In fact, throughout the year much hand labor is required, and even this year, when many people are unemployed, it has been hard to get enough good help.

The help required in this kind of farming was in evidence on the 160 acres of farm of Kisling Brothers, which we had visited shortly before sundown on the same day. They were in the middle of the celery harvest, and that is some job, for there was 40 acres of beautiful celery on this 160 acre farm. John Kiesling showed the champion celery at the Muck Crop Show in 1933, and while he did not say much about it, it seemed that his entries, selected from that which he was growing this year, would place well in the Muck Crop Show at Churubusco, October 30-November 2. By the time you read this story, you may have heard the results of the 1934 Show. - - - - - -

700 Bus. Per Acre

Perhaps I should start now at the beginning of the story. My imagination had been excited by a report which Rosoe Fraser showed me the day that Purdue licked Wisconsin so badly on the football field. This report was from County Agent Hadley and was to the effect that E.L. Mitchell, a muck crop farmer near Rochester, had produced a yield of more than 700 bushels to the acre on his 400-bushel potato club acre. This yield is sensational in Indiana, and so we had gathered at the Mitchell farm earlier on this particular day, and there had spent considerable time, studying the production of this marvelous crop of potatoes.

Mitchell has a farm of 80 acres, which he bought some twelve years ago. It was in bad shape at the time, and he had a big job to set his drainage working, and to fight down the weeds. This year he is growing in vegetables 14 acres of potatoes, seven acres of celery and seven acres of onions. In this particular field he had used 700 pounds to the acre of 0-8-24 fertilizer under the rows. Part of the secret of the big yield is the fact that the rows are twenty inches apart, and the hills were planted about ten inches apart in the row. Rural New Yorker seed potatoes were used as seed. The gross yield of over 200 bushels to the acre was indicated by the five tests made over the acre under the rules of the club. - - - - - -

WALL STREET
By The Sage of Wall Street
_The News-Sentinel_, Dec 6, 1934
Sometime in the misty past, before the "Monster" of Manitou was known to be a myth, somebody changed the map of this fair city: filched a block off the ten broad expanse of Pearl street and called it Wall.
And when so referred to, even in this late day, nobody who even professes to know his or her Rochester need think twice to locate it, although Pearl street has long since disappeared into the limbo of the lost or forgotten.
Wall street, then as now, officially begins at Monroe and streaks eastward, across the old Lake Erie tracks. Or in the memory of the oldtimers, at Bill RossÔs blacksmith shop to the east line of Ike AlexanderÔs ÒLast ChanceÓ - - - unless one happened to be coming from the lake, in which case, the sign read. ÒFirst Chance.Ó
And between those two sentinels to the Alpha and Omega of the street, he no doubt recalls the eating emporium of the late Jess Burns, where delicious and sundry viands were served at a quarter the throw; of Lew Davidson and his grocery, or Bill Curtis and his boy Charlie, who furnished the brooms that kept Fulton county spotless.
London’s Piccadilly Circus, New York’s Broadway, Berlin’s Under den Linden all may have produced bigger merchants, but none ever knew men of greater compassion or the joy of truer companions than Bil Demont and Columbus Richardson the grocers, Jim Kepler and John Swartwood, dispensers of choice cuts of lamb, ram, sheep and mutton; nor could they boast of greater tonsorial prowess than the hand of John Dodge, the barber.

And they never knew better transportation service than that purveyed by Tyne Adamson, the drayman.

Yes, it was a great street - the gateway to the east down which Elliott Bailey and Posey Johnson, Peter Weisener and a host of others who made colloquial history, were familiar figures

It’s changed now, of course. Its soggy mud-holes are covered with the respiring surface of paving bricks. Bill Ross’ smithy shop is now the site of the Ewing Grocery. The Demont Grocery, broom factory and Kepler’s Market locations being at present preempted by the Miller Bros. Garage. The Burns eating emporium has long since made way for Virgil Becker’s filling station. The Snapp Grocery Co. Sign now hangs where once the name of Lew Davidson held forth and the Swartwood Market, later rebuilt and operated by Vine Curtis, is known today as Johnson’s Market. The Adamson barn, once the rendezvous of countless drays and nickering hosses, later manicured by our fellow townsman Jimmy Coplen, houses the Johnson poultry market, while beyond the old established limits are the Carlton Ice and Coal Company yards, the Farm Bureau yards and warehouses, the fish hatchery, airport and the mercurial outline of the North Shore, famed for its dining and dancing and the summer residence of many of our citizens.

The tonsorial honors of the street go to Reuben (Bony) Thrush, who has efficiently removed the never ending crops of hirsute embellishments, while the lusty appetits of the vicinity now find appeasement at the Manitou Cafe.

Only one landmark of the golden yesterdays towers its imposing prominence, not here-to-fore mentioned - the Deniston Elevator, now the Wilson Grain and Coal Company, without which Wall street might be known by the unromatic numeral it really is - East Ninth.

STATE’S YOUNGEST PROSECUTOR
Dale Poenix

When Dale Poenix, aged 22, took over the prosecuting attorney’s office yesterday, Fulton county had the honor of having the state’s youngest attorney. As Poenix stepped in, George Buchanan, also a man early in age, stepped out.

New Year’s day will probably be one long remembered by Prosecutor Poenix. Not very often does a young man 22 years of age get the chance to sit in the prosecuting attorney’s chair at such an age. Not only that honor has he to remember, but also to recall the successfulness of his young political career and what lies ahead of him.

Dale Poenix is a Fulton county product, born at Grass Creek, and graduating from Grass Creek schools. He entered this world on September 17, 1912, and received his High school diploma in 1930. KEWNEY FOUNDRY
John Kewney, Owner
The News-Sentinel, Jan. 28, 1935

The Kewney Foundry, owned and operated by John Kewney, occupied the north portion of the 300 block on the east side of Main street. The building must have been erected before the Civil War, for it appeared old and weather beaten, more than a half century ago.

At the rear of the main building under a roofed addition with open sides, a horse marched miles and miles in a circle, turning a great sprocket wheel and drive shaft, from which the lathes and machinery were powered. If the horse slowed up, which he often did, a boy was lifted to the horse’s back, a treat of responsibility, every boy in the north end was willing to accept without pay.

At five o'clock, each work day, the blast furnace was opened and into the laddles poured the white-hot-metal to be transferred to the moulds. The street doors were packed by neighborhood kids to witness the fire works and there was an occasional fight - over a front row position.

Here, the Kewney Iron Beam Plow was made and shipped throughout the Central States, years before the Olivers opened a small shop in South Bend.

When the cashier of the Ashton Bank - Rochester's first bank - left town very suddenly, between days, with the deposits and destination unknown, the Kewney Foundry closed its doors and turned the old horse out on pasture.

What could have been? What might have been? A product with an established reputation, and the world in which to market it. We have often wondered.

TABERNACLE ERECTED
In Two Days On West 7th St.
The News-Sentinel, March 14, 1935

In early June of the year 1908 an advance agent induced the local clergy and church trustees to Òsign on the dotted lineÓ for a 30-30 and night appearance of an Evangelist, whose Òbatting averageÓ was guaranteed to be equal to that of Billy Sunday.

A monster tabernacle was erected on West Seventh street on the ground now occupied by the Mercer, Baker and Fenstermacher residences. Local lumber concerns donated the use of the required materials and every citizen who could handle a hammer was requested to be on the lot at a certain hour and all having no carpenter ability were to send such an artist and pay the union scale of that date. Within the record time of two days the tabernacle and seats, rostrum space for 100 singers and a Òsaw dust trailÓ was completed and the old town of Rochester was on the way to the greatest spiritual uplift in its history.
whether it needed it or not.

The great choir was easily organized, in fact it had a waiting list, for the Evangelist singer was single and "awfully good looking." The first week was taken up by the Evangelist in special sermons explaining why he was not a Jew, a Roman Catholic, a Spiritualist or a Christian Scientist. But, when he opened the second week with the announcement that Rochester before HE left it would be divided, as all communities should be, Christian trading with Christian, and the remaining ungodly would have to be content with that which was left. Rochester never having been divided before and as the self-appointed shepherd to count "the sheep and the goats" had been unsolicited his contract was ordered immediately cancelled in order to subdue an oncoming riot.

The empty tabernacle was taken over by the Chairmen of the local Democrat and Republican parties for the long line of campaign speeches. In this building the Hon. Frederick Landis made his first political speech in Fulton county. Standing before a background of all the flags to be borrowed in Rochester, Frederick Landis gallantly fought over every battle of the Civil War from the first shot at Fort Sumter to Lee's surrender at Appomatox.

SHIREMAN, HOWARD
Finally Gets His Tip - and Poetic Apology
The News-Sentinel, April. 16, 1935
It pays to kick - and as a result of an earlier kick, Howard Shireman, Western Union messenger boy of this city is kicking and cavorting around town like a six year old colt in green pastures, today.

According to Shireman, his first yelp was made late Thursday evening when he discovered that Mary E. Bostwick, prominent news and literary writer of the Indianapolis Star had slipped him a street car check instead of a dime, as a tip. The messenger had rendered prompt service for Miss Bostwick in rushing her story of press day at the Cole Bros Circus quarters over the wire in time for the night edition of the Star. Soon after the Star's representative had left the city Howard became aware of the gyp and immediately forwarded a note to Miss Bostwick informing her of the discrepancy in their otherwise pleasant business transaction.

In this morning's mail young Shireman received a bright, new dime and the following bit of verse which made the world right side up (252) again and restored his faith with newspaper people in general:
Howard Shireman
I now apologize, by heck,
For handing you a street car check
I was so haywire at the time
I thought the street car check a dime----
I didn't mean a soul to gyp--
'Twas just a most unhappy slip- -
The soda that you might have had
You didn't get--it's very sad!
So chase the wrinkles from my brow
And GET THAT ICE CREAM SODA NOW!

Sincerely yours,
Mary E. Bostwick

GREEN HOUSES
In Fulton County Over The Years
The News-Sentinel, April. 18, 1935
Fulton County's first Green House, operated by James Adamson, was located on a farm, now occupied by the home of Walter House,
North Shore Drive, State Road No. 14.
It was not much of a "green house" - but - regardless of its primeval magnitude, our great-grandmothers and grandmothers journeyed there, for fuchsia, nutmeg geraniums and oleanders - and when the plants bloomed in all their glory, in the south window, joy and happiness prevailed throughout the entire househld.
More than forty years later, John H. Shelton, opened the second green house venture on West Eleventh Street. Choice carnations, at thirty-five cents per dozen, was Shelton's satisfying price. Years later, all thought of posies, flowers and whatnot plants, was sold to Fred Walters, who in turn amid flower loving service, sold his possession to Charles MaVean, who "Says It With Flowers" in such an adroit fashion, that he need not doff his cap to any florist.

Back of Woodlawn Hospital, some years ago, Henry Arnold, conducted extensive greenhouses, which he later conveyed to Pletcher Brothers, moved to North Judson, Indiana where he established a large Peony Farm. Seeing Mr. Arnold at his work, hearing him explain and fondle flowers, no other thought could be entertained than that - he was born, to play with flowers.

Following Mr. Arnold one day through the aisles of bloom and fragrance of his greenhouse - just listening - for that was all anyone cared to do while Henry Arnold talked about - FLOWERS. On nearing the street entrance one of our party asked Mr. Arnold: "Of all the flowers, which one is your favorite?" My favorite, he said slowly, as he removed his hat, it is the Hollyhock. The deep pink ones, I mean. My mother always had them in her garden - in Germany.

BEYER, J.E., EASTER CUSTOM
At Beyer Home, 700 Pontiac Street
The News-Sentinel, April 20, 1935

An annual Easter custom in the days of Mr. & Mrs. J.E. Beyer, occupying the beautiful Beyer home, (SW) corner of Seventh and Pontiac streets, was the children's Easter Egg Hunt.

Days previous to Easter Mrs. Beyer was busy preparing and coloring eggs - never less than 3,500 - boiled and beautifully colored. Early Easter morning Mr. Beyer and a crew hid the eggs in the bushes and hedge surrounding the Beyer lawn.

At one o'clock Easter Sunday afternoon, one-half of the child population of Rochester lined the sidewalks framing the Beyer home. In hand were baskets, large and small. - - - - Promptly at three o'clock the signal was given - the big scramble and egg hunt was on. Two Big Children, laughing, shouting and enjoying the event most were Mr. & Mrs. Beyer. God blest these noble people abundantly. They were Lamp Lighters along the pathway of Child Life. They played with and loved children. They lifted themselves by lifting others and did their part in making many an Easter Sunday a great day.
MOVING PICTURES
Came To Rochester
The News-Sentinel, May 3, 1935

Wilber Mitchell opened Rochester’s first moving picture show in the New Miller building, 624 Main Street.

The program, all for five cents, consisted of two short reel picture stories and a colored illustrated song. The singer making the song sweet and remembered was May Brockman-Touhy.

Next in local motion picture industry came Earle Miller, who opened the “Moving Picture Palace” of its day in the room now occupied by Howard’s Variety Store, 830 Main Street. In his neat little theater Earle Miller introduced America’s first “talking motion picture” during the winter season of 1913. While the effort was crude, the star artist being Black Patti, it was the beginning of present-day effect and completeness and we counted it marvelous and good.

In later years the Bassett Brothers opened the “My Show” in the north Helburn room, later followed by changed name to “Paramount,” which in late years unoccupied, has been a heavy eye sore of decay and neglect. Then came Mr. & Mrs. LeRoy Shanks with motion pictures and a song which was followed by Carl Jessen, who through advertising and a contest, named his picture show the K-G. Following Jessen’s venture came James Masterson and Son, opening a moving picture show in the old Academy of Music which was of short duration, due to the fact that “folks” were unwilling to climb stairs. But the venture of all ventures was made by James L. Kimmel in opening a picture show and vaudeville north of the public square. It was the “biggest show and the most for your money.” Two reels of pictures and five vaudeville acts, changing three times weekly, cost Kimmel 200 acres of the very best farm land in Miami county.

Up to now Kriehbaum Brothers occupy and hold “the center” for the very best to be shown in pictures. One theater is flashing “The Char Bell,” while in bright lights is announced “The Rex,” the latest addition to a long list in theatrical and motion picture Rochester history.

To Earle Miller goes the “Laurel of Entertainment Achievement” of past or present Rochester history. His Mid-Winter Chautauqua of 1914 held at the old Academy of Music brought Rochester Elbert Hubbard, the beloved sage of the Royerofters: Dr. Frederick A Cook, the man claiming the discovery of the North Pole; Louise Dunbar and John A. Preston and a supporting company of (255) professional artists in “The Light Eternal”; Judge Ben Linsey, famous Juvenile Court Judge; Opie Reed, renowned American novelist and writer and the great Kilty Band. - - - -

ROCHESTER PUBLIC SCHOOLS
Home Town Tales
The News-Sentinel, May 9, 1935

Rochester’s first graded Public School building, consisting of four rooms on the first floor, the Superintenden office and a large High School assembly room on the second floor, from which, graduated, a precious few each school year, was located on the ground now occupied by the United Brethren Church. For some unaccountable reason, the building was destroyed by fire, in the month of March, 1886.

There were other superintendents, of course, but our memory of Rochester Public School history, which by no means classed as authentic, were Bryant, Williams, Ward and James F. Scull.

When James F. Scull accepted complete control, he inaugurated NEW ideas. He immediately dispensed with the old time fifteen minute recess period, robbed each pupil of their name, and in place, assigned - a number.

Hands behind our backs, single file, we paraded around the school house to a watering trough presided over by Peter Baker, the most beloved school janitor of the many on the long list. At this watering trough, we exchanged every brand of contagion - hoof and mouth disease, included.

On July 20, 1887, the corner stone of the present Lincoln School building was placed in position amid grand Masonic rites, following a monster parade. The town of Rochester was performing a necessity, but there was opportunity for a gala day of celebration, and of course, like all events, before or since, Main Street merchants - paid the bill.

The much advertised stellar attraction for the great event, was a balloon ascension - “Higher Than The Stars” by Prof. Frank Casad. with a seventy-two foot balloon. The "Professor" started filling the mammoth balloon floated northward one block, where the daring aeriaist, garbed in red flannel underwear and a plug hat, landed astride a high rail fence dividing the Judge Sidney Keith estate, from the north portion of the Keith orchard, which the Judge sold to the Rochester School Board for the erection of the Lincoln School. And so, another great event, became history and one more experience in grand celebrations - as a grumbling and dissatisfied crowd started for home and the chores.

FEECE FLOWING WELL & SANITRIUM
Six Miles Southeast of Rochester
The News-Sentinel, May 18, 1935

Six miles southeast of Rochester still remains the ruin-remnant of all that once was "The Feece Flowing Well and Sanarium."

In the year 1885, Rev. William Feece purchased a wood tract of land consisting of 40 acres for the establishment of a home. Well drivers at the depth of 102 feet encountered a gushing flow of water. A strange mineral deposit of the water invited investigation. An analysis proved the water to be rich in magnesim oxide and equal to the water from the famous French Lick Springs. With limited capital,
Rev. Feece erected a boiler house and a small sanitarium. Its success or failure was hinged on the free publicity two Rochester weekly newspapers could offer and the word of mouth of testimony of the doubting few who came finding health and happiness. William Patterson, a Roann, Indiana, druggist, desiring to retire, visioning great wealth possibilities, entered into a contract with Dr. R Murphy, old in years of experience, leased the buildings and grounds. Believe it or not, the sick and the afflicted under the management of Dr Murphy, left crutches as their momento.

As a "special attraction" during the summer season each Sunday Maria Woodworth conducted evangelistic services in the great wooded grove east of the sanitarium grounds. Long, crude wood benches arranged in front of a slab wood platform and pulpit, forming nature's great open air cathedral. Maria Woodworth told the simple story of humanitarianism - the forgotten gospel-of-yesterday - and today.

In this "Temple of the Great out of Doors," before a monster Sunday afternoon gathering, Squire Oscar Johnson, Justice of the Peace of all Henry township and William B. Finnamore, both lawyer and preacher, of Macy, Indiana, entered into a debate on "Spiritualism." In the argument Johnson, the advocate of Spiritualism, was driven from the platform by Lawyer-Preacher Finnemore. Seeing an opening for an expression of his code of what Jesus really meant in His Sermon on the Mount, Rev. Feece handed his linen duster to his wife for safe keeping, strode to the platform and amid wild, old-time shouting and gesture told his version of true and honest religious code to the complete annihilation of Attorney Finnemore and Squire Johnson.

The Feece flowing well still continues to percolate. The well and a small tract of adjoining pasture land is the property of William C. Ewing. Contented cattle, nothing more, sip there daily. Sometime, someone, sure as sure can be, will see and reap a fortune.

RAILROADER RETIRES AFTER 54 YRS.
Clark Condon
The News-Sentinel, Nov. 11, 1935
Back in October of 1881, when Rochester’s only lines of transportation were the Wabash railroad and the Michigan road, a young telegrapher stepped off the northbound train and reported to Wabash Agent C.E. Glass at the depot on East Eighth St.  His name was H.C. Condon.  And on Nov. 1, 1935, 54 years and one month later, he was retired from the same office on pension - the oldest employee in point of service on the Nickle Plate road.

A volume might be written on those years of service.  It might contain a different anecdote on every page, and yet prove inadequate to retail a fulsome account.  But passing sketchily across the more than half a century of time - the years in which the name of Clark Condon was synonymous with transportation in Rochester, this city has witnessed the coming of another railroad, the electric light, the telephone, automobile, airplane, radio and the paved highway.

Those whose memory antedate the Gay nineties may recall the days when the Wabash name was changed and the Huckleberry Route as it was affectonately known, became the Indianapolis, Peru & Chicago.  Others will remember when the same line took on the more auspicious cognomen of Lake Erie & Western.  Most of us have seen it change from the Lake Erie to the New York Central Lines, and later to the Nickel Plate road.  But Clark Condon, who began with the Wabash, has remained an employee outliving each of them except the last.

Mr. Condon’s service as an agent began in August 1894 when he relieved the late C.O. Link who came here from Michigan Cty in the late 1880’s.  Having traded agencies with R.D. Couch, who was in charge of the local station during the era when the Chicago & Atlantic (now Erie) was building through this county; and a large amount of material for the new road was being shipped in via the I.P.& C.
That period, said Mr. Condon, was the most active railroad experience I have ever seen in Rochester. The book and accounting work necessary to handle the volume of rails, ties, etc. kept Mr. Couch and myself busy all day, and most of the nights.

In addition to all the clerical duties, I had also to handle the Western Union message work. That was before the day of telephones, and we were the only telegraph office in the county. My first messenger boy was Ed Stradley who later became a telegrapher and well known railroad man, as did Claude Crockett, Tim Coakley, John Myers, Chas. Keel, Roy Cooper, Gaar Reed and Roy Robbins.

Others who learned telegraphy in the office on East Eighth street but who have since changed to other vocations were: Eugene Southard, Earl Sisson, Simeon Bailey, John Slaybaugh and Virgil Robbins.

Mr. Condon began his railroad career at Denver Junction, Indiana, in 1874, as an employee of the old Eel River railroad. In 1876 he left the Eel River to spend a year in California.

In 1879 he toured Europe. Returning to America in the summer of 1880 he went to his home in Logansport and took employment in the auditor's office of the Eel River road, then operated by the Wabash R.R.

A vacancy having occurred at Rochester in 1881, he was sent here to relieve a discharged employee. He expected to remain here only a short time.

Lake Manitou got me, he says. He became interested in the possibilities at the lake, and stuck around. Then I got married, and Rochester was home.

As evidence of his early interest in the lake, he points to his investments in Big Island and several lots on the East Side, at a time when few local residents were considering Manitou as a coming playground.

In April 1932, when passenger train service was discontinued on the Nickle Plate, after more than a half century of uninterrupted service, Mr. Condon, accompanied by Ike M. Wile and Frank H. Terry rode the train as far as Macy and returned by automobile.

It was like attending the funeral of an old and dear friend, he says of that trip.

During the last fifteen years of his service, Mr. Condon made it a rule to spend at least one out of each twelve months in travel.

He plans to spend much of his time making short visits among his six children who are scattered about the country: Mrs. Bernard Clayton at Zionsville, Ind., Mrs. Ethel Young at Schuylkillhaven, Pa.; Mrs. Edna Bartlett, Greenwood, Miss; Joe and Walter in Portland, Ore.; and Mrs. Frankie Kent at home.

In November of 1884, Mr. Condon was married to Miss Martha Weiss who passed away in January 1934, a few months prior to a planned Golden Wedding Anniversary.

In leaving the service, Mr. Condon turned the office over to his assistant, Harry Brower who will act as agent here until a regular successor is appointed.

Official announcement of the appointment of Harry Brower as permanent agent of the Nickle Plate Road in Rochester has been made, as was the assignment of R.E. Cook, formerly of Tiosa, as his assistant.

The change which was made on account of the retirement on pension of H.C. Condon on November 1, comes as a Christmas present to Mr. Brower and is shared by his many friends.

Mr. Brower began service with the Nickle Plate (then Lake Erie & Western) in 1917 as a clerk and operator. His appointment as local agent comes as a fitting tribute to his loyalty, efficiency and excellent service throughout the years.

AKRON BOYS REMEMBERED
For Their Part in Gold Rush
The News-Sentinel, Dec. 27, 1935

Folks around Akron are recalling one of their favorite pioneer stories these days, a story about the gold rush of 1849 and of the fate of six Akron men who heard the call and sought the yellow metal - all in vain and at the extreme cost. The story still thrills the listeners because it brings a realization of what hardships were endured in those days and how cheaply life was held while the western part of the nation was becoming "civilized."

The story was made to live once more when Verne Shipley, a resident of Akron, returned from a visit to the Pacific coast and began to ask questions about the gold rush days. He said that he had visited the relic museum in the Chamber of Commerce Department in Los Angeles and while there saw an old covered wagon, battered and worn, and on which was plate reading, "Driven by the Whittenberger Brothers of Fulton County, Indiana, to California at the time of the Gold Rush."

Shipley learned that the brothers mentioned were Thomas and Abram Whittenberger, sons of William Whittenberger, the founder of the town of Akron.

The complete story was learned from Miss Ina Brundige, the official historian of the Akron community, and a granddaughter of Mrs. William Whittenberger. She said that in 1849 six men, all residents of Akron, decided to join in the rush in the mad search for gold in California. They were the two Whittenbergers, George McCloud, William Sippy, a Mr. Coggswell and a Mr. Wilcox. The group fixed up their covered wagon, outfitted themselves and made the long and dangerous trip overland hoping to gain their fortunes by a short time.

But ill luck overtook the group and two of the men became sick and died on the way. The other four finally after many hardships reached the edge of Death Valley and there staked out a claim. Finding they did not have sufficient equipment to mine gold, the Whittenberger brothers left the camp in charge of the other two men and departed for the nearest town to purchase the needed tools. Days later, upon their return to their camp, they found their two companions missing and a group of strange men settled on the claim. The brothers were never able to learn what happened to their companions, but reached the conclusion that they had been murdered by the invaders of their claim. The other theories of course were that they had been killed by Indians or that they left for other territory.

Discouraged at this turn of events the Whittenberger boys sold all of their equipment, including the wagon, and worked their hazardous way to the Pacific coast. There they took a boat and sailing around South America finally reached New York and thence returned to Akron. One brother lived to be 84 years of age and the other 82 and the story of their gold rush experiences became a family and neighborhood tradition. Naturally it was vividly recalled by the older persons of Akron who had heard it direct from the brothers when it was learned that the wagon the adventurers used was one of the main exhibits in the western museum.
